Cheryl,
 Well, we have been thru a lot and I'm so glad that we are friends.
 You are the best! You are always there when
 I need you. Remember
 I'm here too. We are going to have the best year. Next year will be great too! Good luck in the future. Remember the bet we made.
 Maybe I'll see you at
 A & M. (But I doubt it) HEE! HEE!
 Love ya lots,
 Kathleen

Cheryl,
 I am writing this here because I don't want anyone to read it. I love you very much and I am glad we are back together.
 Come see me next year when I am away at college

Love
 Always!

One could definitely say that school had affected everyone. Memories of the year's pep rallies, dances, football games, tests, studying, and unfortunately, homework filled the minds of all Taylor students. Yes, everyone was changed by school.

Freshmen were changed by new experiences such as learning the floor plan of the school and having more requirements made of them. Sophomores made the change from the ultimate underclassmen to semi-underclassmen. Juniors began changing into seniors, receiving their class rings and making their senior schedules. But the seniors were changed the most over the year. Seniors were changed as they made plans for graduation by ordering graduation announcements and caps and gowns, and as they made plans for the future by applying to universities or seeking employment.

The school itself also changed over the year, acquiring 1822 students and 118 teachers. The increased enrollment resulted in the hiring of new teachers and in the usage of all classrooms. Two new principals, Dr. Roy Mendez and Mr. Wayne Frepon, also joined the Taylor staff, as Dr. James Carthel left Taylor to become the principal of the new Memorial

Parkway Junior High School. School policy was also somewhat changed as midterm exams were replaced by "comprehensive exams." Administrators also buckled down on violators of the dress code and other school policies more than ever before.

Students were also changed by the world around them. Many students had to work just in order to keep spending money in their pockets. But not everyone was even able to work due to the high unemployment rate. In addition to these problems, unrest continued to exist over the usage of nuclear arms.

The year also brought about the first experimental usage of the artificial heart. Also, unfortunately, the sunny state of California began falling into the ocean due to the unusually numerous amounts of floods and rains. Locally, the Houston Cougars proved to be the number one ranked college basketball team in the nation. Finally, Taylor's location of being in a state of "limitlessness" was confirmed when Katy approved a zoning plan. Thus from Highway 6 to Mason Road is under the jurisdiction of no city limits.

STUDENT LIFE

August — September

As August rolled around, the summer days were coming to an end. Those long, hot days at work were fading out, the parties of summer were dying, and the fun and frolic of the beach was coming to an abrupt halt as school days arrived.

The end of summer marked the beginning of a new school year. As the thought of school hit the air, students did last minute items. Some rushed to the mall to fight the crowds, and others for last minute Z's!

The air was getting colder, and the leaves were turning from green to brown. The flowers were at the end of their blooming season. The fresh air of summer was coming to an end.

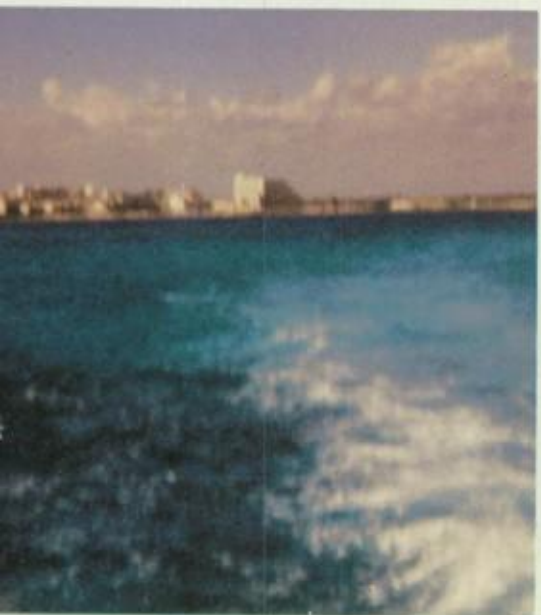

Football games, school dances, field parties, and school productions were the many after school activities attended by students. These activities during August and September provided excellent opportunities for students to get together. It was a carefree atmosphere and they were having fun.

The Paramedics were the party crew of '82-'83. The Paramedics consisted of a few juniors and seniors. Their main concern was to party!!!

Having fun was the main interest of most Taylor students. These were the students which were so prevalent in this season of lively spirits.

FIRST DAY DILEMMAS

The end of the summer — what a terrible thought! But when the alarm rang at 5:30 a.m., I realized that I had not just been having a bad dream, this was reality. I thought I was going to die. I attempted to get out of bed only because I knew I had to. Wait, something was definitely wrong! I could not get up. My body was paralyzed from the shock of awakening so early. When I was finally able to stand, I was not sure if I could make the trip to the shower, but eventually I did. Only after I had stood there for about half an hour did the sensation of cold water pounding on my body help to overcome my sleepiness.

When I finished with my shower, I went to my closet and stood there stunned. What in the world was I going to wear today? I rummaged through the massive amount of clothes stored in my closet, but I could not find a single thing to wear. As I just stood there in wonder, I realized that I was running out of time. I decided that I would just have to make do with what I had.

On the way to school I was wondering whether or not I was going to be able to survive this year. The radio was broadcasting "We Don't Need No Education," which only made me feel worse. My stomach and head were spinning as I drove into the student parking lot, only to find no vacant parking spaces. I drove the car around and decided to park in the teacher's parking lot, hoping that I would not get into trouble for that action.

I quietly opened the door and walked right into a state of mass confusion. Hundreds of students were in the Commons either lined up waiting for their schedules or running around screaming and hugging each other.

Like everyone else, the first thing I did after receiving my schedule was to find my locker. It was going to be the picture of perfection. Unfortunately, my dreams were shattered when I discovered that I had been assigned a bottom locker. Before I even looked in it, I hated it. Nevertheless, I turned the combination and pulled the latch — it did not open. I tried once more — then I wished I had not opened it! Sitting there, in front of my eyes, was a huge, disgusting roach! At least something was enjoying my locker!

The bell rang and I proceeded to attend my first three classes. I never thought I would be so glad to hear the fourth period bell as I was on that day.

Thank goodness it was lunchtime! I sat down and began slowly to eat my lunch and relax for the first time that day. I had not even taken four bites of my sandwich before Mr. Kloppenburg came over the speaker saying that there were only seven minutes of lunch remaining. I hurriedly began wolfing down my food, hoping only to be able to finish before the bell rang. I was taking the last bite of my cookie when the bell rang to go to fourth period class.

On the way to class, I was practically knocked over by other students going to lunch. Then, during class, it seemed like the bells would never quit ringing and interrupting my train of thought. Finally, the bell rang to leave fourth period and I attended my last two classes. Once again I was filling out information cards, listening to school rules, and hearing teacher requirements. I was so happy when the bell to leave school rang! Surprisingly enough, I had survived the first day of school. Whether or not I would survive the rest of the year was a question which would have to be answered later. I guess school is not really as bad as everyone makes it out to be!

By Denise Davis

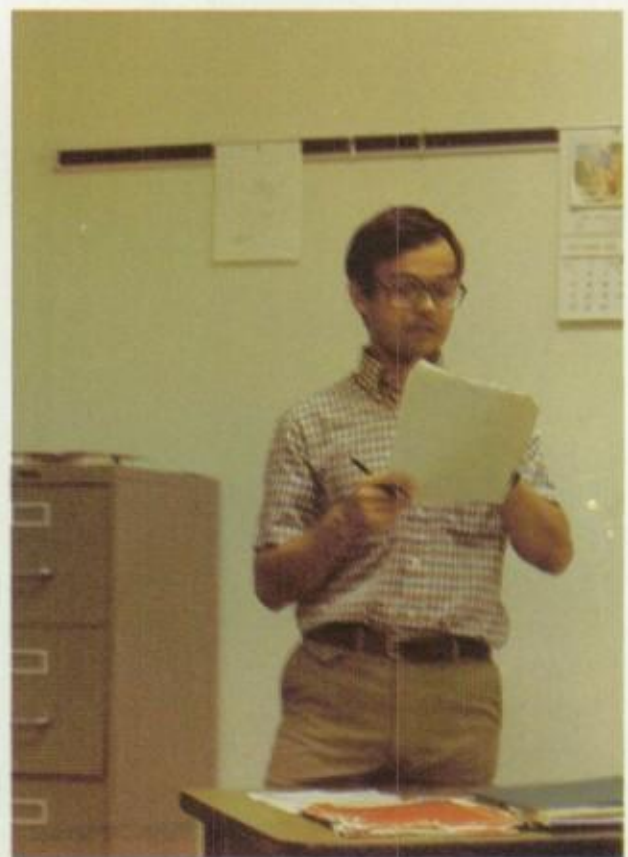

Freshman Mario Meza wonders if the entire school year is going to be this bad.

Michelle Hushka, Senior, recalls what school lunches are like. The seniors did not receive the privilege of an open campus for lunch like they had hoped they would.

On the first day of school, Joe Buddner, senior, finds it difficult to arise from bed this early in the morning.

Mr. Kendziorski reads classroom rules to his Introductory Algebra class on the first day of school.

Parking spaces can usually be found in the THS parking lot after students have left school in the middle of the day on their work programs. Senior parking makes it hard for the underclassmen to obtain a decent parking space.

Taylor Tramples Tigers

Taylor and Katy High Schools join together in performing the National Anthem at the beginning of the Katy-Taylor game.

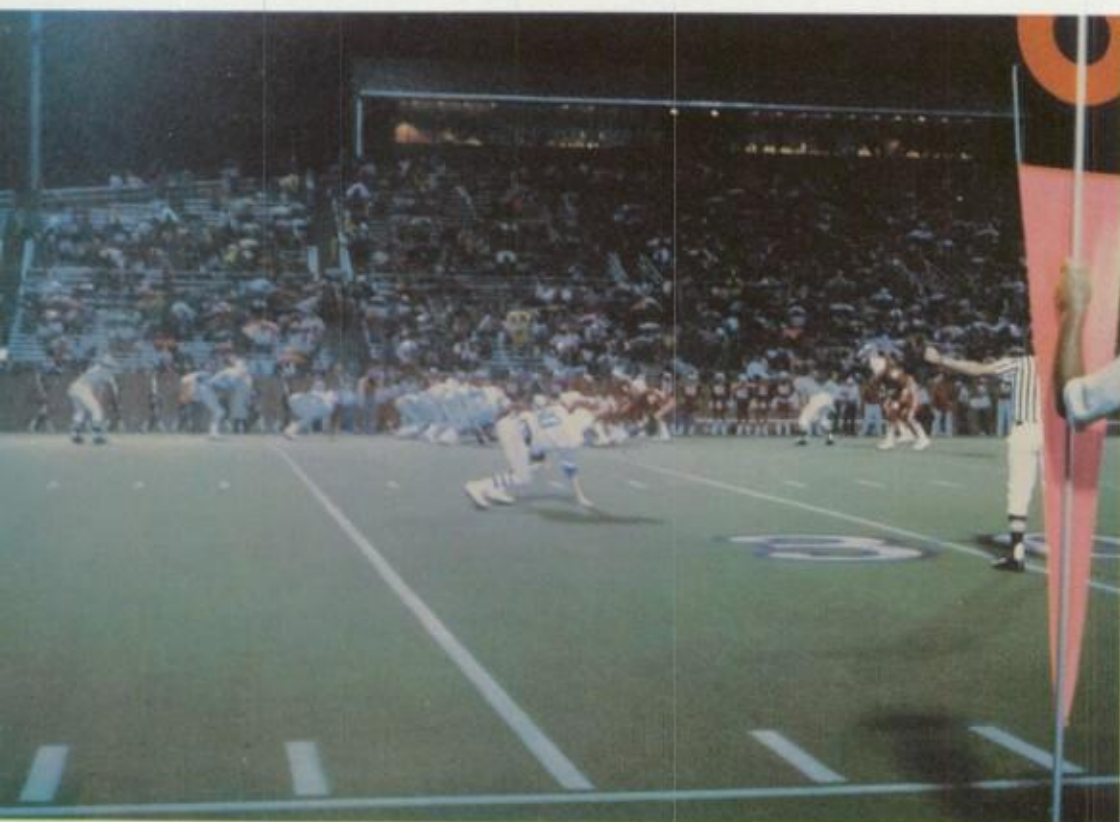

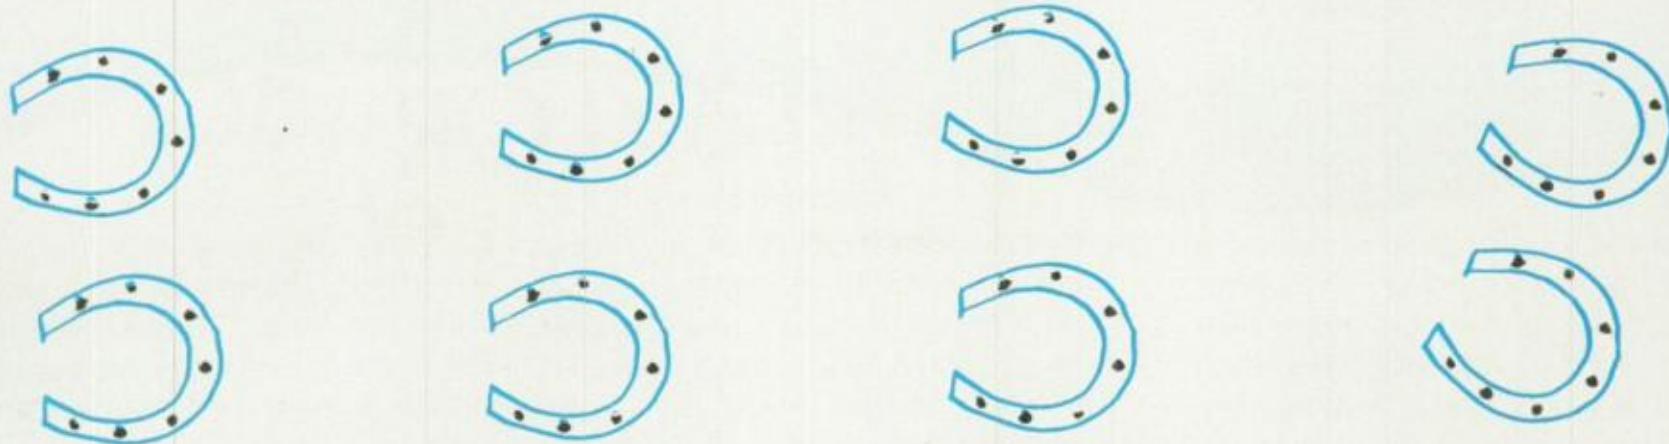

Senior Football player Clint Slussler leads the Mighty Mustang Men through a line of cheering Senior Women into the pep rally.

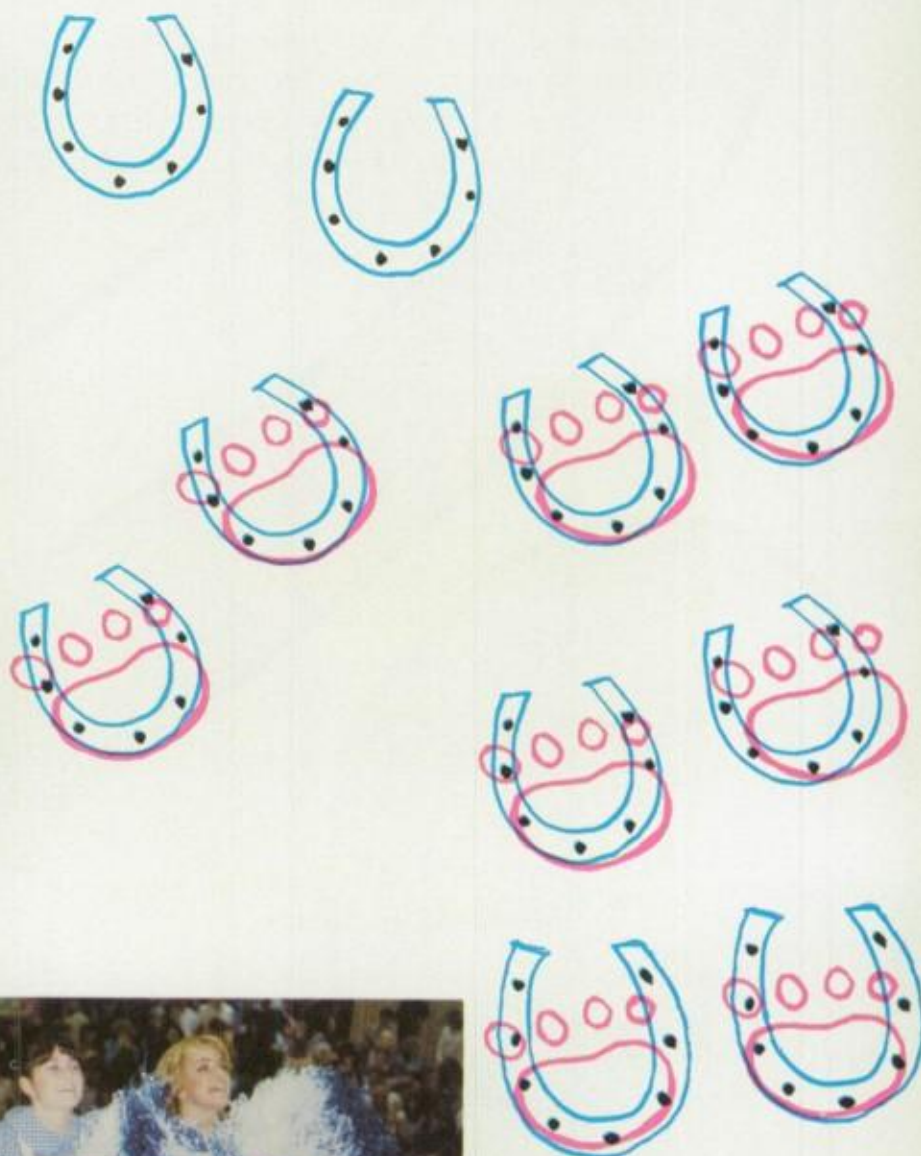

Mustang twirler Lori Biggs, senior, performs with the band at the halftime of the Katy-Taylor game.

Mustang football player Steve Atkinson, Junior, spoke at the pep rally as everyone listened intently.

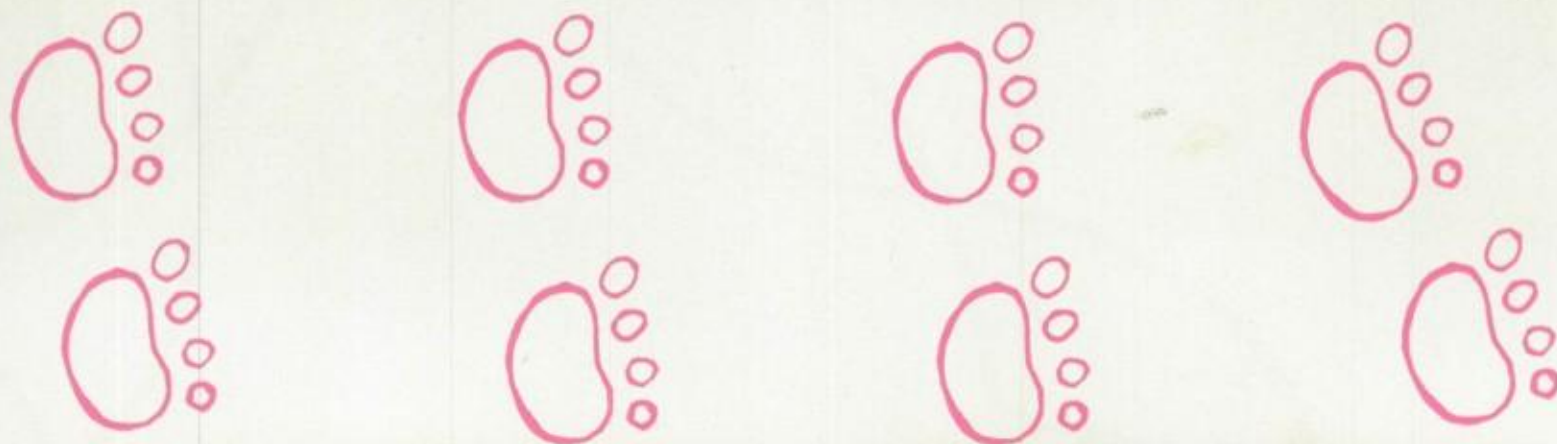

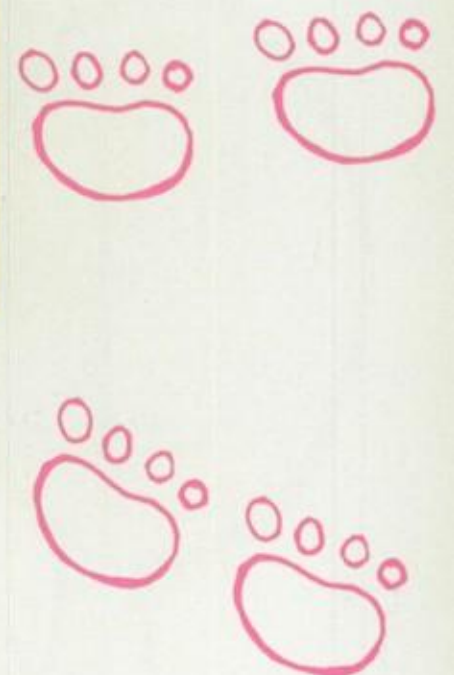

The Varsity Mustangs form the line of scrimmage in action against the Katy Tigers. Taylor beat Katy 5-3!!!

Dedicated Mustang fans show their support even in the rain as seen here at the Katy-Taylor game.

FAST TIMES AT TAYLOR HIGH

Fast times at Taylor High truly describes the exciting school life led by the students at Taylor. Many of the days were filled with the fun and excitement leading up to a pep rally at school. Many class organizations did special little things such as the Senior Women decorated the Varsity football players' lockers, and formed a spirit line for the Mustang Men. The Junior Girls made signs to help the cheerleaders, decorated the Junior Varsity football players' lockers and gave the Varsity players carnations at one of the pep rallies.

Some would think it was crazy to get up at 5:30 a.m. just to make it to a breakfast before school at 6:30 a.m., but it was fun!!

The many special theme days really brought forth that special "look," whether it was the Mustang Mascot ready for a luau or a group of crazy students acting like the Beach Boys. Even the Taylor Teachers dressed up for a Halloween fashion show that even Ralph Lauren would enjoy.

Varsity players went all out for the last pep rally by presenting their football sweetheart, Cheerleader Gayle McAteer, with a dozen red roses. To show their appreciation to the cheerleaders and mascot, each girl was presented a rose from the football team.

As it is known, this season's fun times were totally awesome, so far as to even be tubular, fer sure!!!

Senior class shows their spirit when they decorated the English doors.

The fabulous Marching Mustang Band and Varsity football team presented a spectacular sight at the pre-game activities of the Katy-Taylor game.

Ge Pengra, Mustang Mascot, does the hula for Mustang fans as they prepare for an exciting pep rally of "Hawaiian" day activities.

Taylor High has their own version of the Beach Boys as cheerleaders and fans faint away in awe.

"Totally Awesome"

What are the only two words that can completely describe the pep rallies led by the cheerleaders and student body throughout the 1982 football season? Totally awesome!! Students showed their spirit and good sportsmanship through sometimes doing "wild and crazy" skits to help out the cheerleaders.

The Pacesetters provided many exciting dance routines to boost school morale at the pep rallies and football games. Our Mighty Mustang Band kept us on our feet as we moved to the beat of a fun filled season.

To go out with a bang at the last pep rally, the senior class topped the year off by throwing confetti and many other objects and then yelling a senior yell containing an unexpected obscenity. This clever little tradition resulted in the punishment of the senior class.

As the last pep rally was coming to an end, students felt a touch of sadness at the closing of another year of pep rallies and football games full of cherishable memories.

By Angela Waltman

"I LOVE THE MUSTANGS" is the way Taylor students feel about the Mighty Mustang Football Team. Spirit signs were plentiful during the football season to arouse student enthusiasm.

The graduating class of 83' shows their spirit by clapping, yelling, and screaming at the closing of the last pep rally.

Mustang Mascot Paige Penga displays her spirit by rallying everyone up

On Fifties Day Scott Carter, Jeff Hildreth, Tab Taylor, Steve O'Hara, and Bryan Hindt had their own form of entertaining the Mustang crowd.

Senior David Baarlaer boosts spirits as he fires up the crowd to come out to the game tonight.

The mighty Mustang football team charges onward to defeat their next rival.

October — November

As October and November came along, Houston's humidity persisted. The newness of the school year had worn off and the monotonous daily routine of school remained.

The seniors were deciding where to attend college and were hard at work trying to meet the necessary requirements. Because it was an election year, the senior class held a mock election in which they voted for the candidates of their choice.

The juniors ordered their class rings from Balfour. They waited with baited breath for this one true symbol of senior status. Sophomores and freshmen were getting involved in their studies and were constantly being reminded of their "inferiority" by upperclassmen.

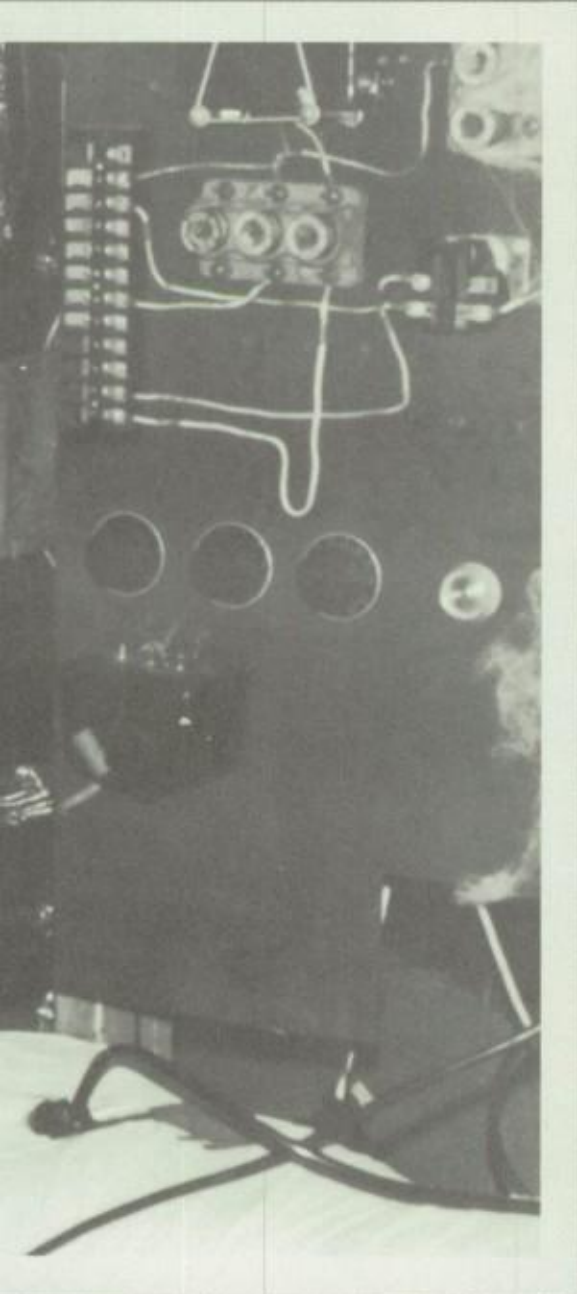

Everyone watched football season fade out with the first Homecoming game. Taylor's first Homecoming Dance was presented on November 6. The theme of the dance was the "Premier" homecoming. The week of Homecoming was effervescing with the enthrallment of activities. Many students were participants in preparations for the game and the dance.

As the football season ended, other activities made their way into weekends. Parties, school plays, and clubs were on the minds of Taylorites.

Everyone was looking forward to the approaching holiday season filled with Yuletide cheer and promises of the new year.

Rally for Mock
Election in State Primaries

Senior Luis Radriquez believes you should take part in every aspect of the mock election.

On November 1 honors Government classes held a mock election in which all Seniors attended. Ev

Seniors Benefit From Mock Elections

The seniors of 1983 participated in a new type of learning activity that was both fun and informative. They held their own mock campaigns, rallies, and election just like the rest of the state was actually doing.

The entire class voted, but it was Mrs. Petersen's Honors Classes that did most of the work. They were the ones who actually ran the campaigns and chose the candidate representatives.

Each of the three honors classes ran a different race. Seniors elected the representative they felt best for the office of governor, lieutenant governor, and senator.

The results of the election among the seniors did not always coincide with those of the state. Mark White for governor and Lloyd Bentsen for U.S. Senator were the winners in both state and school elections, however, George Strake for lieutenant governor defeated Bill Hobby in the mock election but lost to Hobby in the actual election.

The governor's race was probably the most heated battle. The Republican incumbent, Bill Clements, was represented by K. J. Wild, and the Democratic challenger, Mark White, was represented by Chris Albaugh. Because of the contrasting differences of the opinions of the two, there were more arguments and debates among students concerning this race than the others.

Denise Clayton, senior, acted as Mark White's campaign manager in the mock election. "I believe that Mark White has the potential to become the best governor the state has ever seen."

Senior Nem Bryan, on the other hand, voted for Bill Clements and acted as his campaign manager in the mock election. "I was opposed to the state income tax White was proposing. Clements had the state on the way to recovery and he just needed one more term to complete the job."

The race for lieutenant governor was a race in which most seniors seemed to have made up their mind. The Democratic incumbent, Bill Hobby, was represented by Kim Romine, while the Republican opposition, George Strake, was represented by Brian Parizot.

There are many reasons that Strake won in the Taylor High election, but most students probably agree with Steven Tennyson's assessment of the election. "That he was a Republican was a main contributing factor to his victory; and he did do a better job of campaigning than the other candidate."

The race for U.S. Senator posted the Democratic incumbent, Lloyd Bentsen, represented by Nan Crawford, against Republican Jim Collins, represented by Clint Slussler. It was an exciting race although some students felt that Collins was too conservative.

Scott Sipes, senior, said, "I voted for Lloyd Bentsen because he seemed more in touch with the present day problems of society."

This project was created to benefit students by making them more conscientious citizens and voters. Most students agree that they benefited in some way from this activity. Ricky Stokvis, senior, believes he has benefited and says, "This way when I reach the voting age I will make responsible, judicious, selections on whom my representatives will be."

Tammy Kennedy, senior, says, "This way when I run for president, I'll know what to do."

"I now have a better understanding of campaign tactics and politics in America," replies Liz Berner, senior, of the project.

Senior Amanda Fuller feels, "We are more prepared to go vote and are more aware of politicians, their promises, and what they really do."

Students also feel that they have become more conscious citizens and are more prepared to vote upon reaching the age.

Laura Reid, senior, says, "This project has made me more aware of my responsibilities as an American voter."

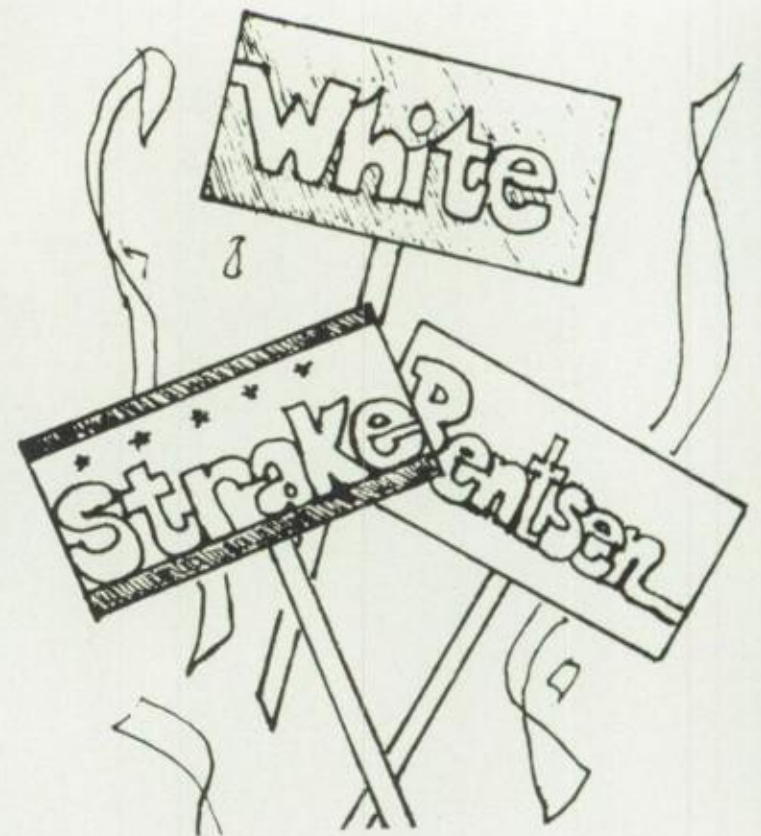

"I am more aware of the political campaign structure," says Senior Kim Romine.

This type of activity proved to be both beneficial and enjoyable to the seniors. It was a huge success and next year's seniors hope for a similar project. As Junior Trevor Mertz put it, "ANYTHING to get out of a research paper!!!"

By Eydie Wahlberg

candidate had its own speaker. All Seniors got involved at the rally.

HOME, SWEET

Excitement ran high during the week of November 1 — 6 as everyone looked forward to Taylor's first Homecoming. The festivities began early in the week with the various activities planned by the Student Council.

On Monday and Tuesday, students worked on decorating the walls of the cafeteria and filling jars with pennies. Both of these contests were judged on Wednesday, with the Freshmen winning the decoration contest and the Seniors winning the penny collecting contest. The money collected in this contest was donated to charity.

On Thursday, students assembled on the practice field after school to work on yet another contest — the spirit link contest. Each class was given a certain blue and white combination with which to assemble their links. Students were given thirty minutes to try to make the longest chain. The winner was the Sophomores.

The contest for Friday was blue and white day. Each class was judged by what percentage of its members were wearing blue and white. The seniors were announced the winners of this contest at the pep rally.

The final contest of the week took place Friday night before the game. Students decorated their cars and then assembled in the THS parking lot to be judged and to go in a caravan to the game. Winners of the car decorating contest were the Art Club in the group competition and Debra Kennedy in the individual competition.

But when the winners arrived at the stadium, they found the stadium filled to capacity with people and there were very few places to sit. Yes, everyone, including many of last year's graduates, were there to see the game and witness the crowning of Taylor's first Homecoming Queen.

All were getting nervous, especially the Homecoming Queen candidates, as the time drew closer to the halftime activities. Candidates for the queen were seniors Jane Clements, Gayle McAteer, Rhonda Peterson, Cathy Roobaert, and Tami Scott. Then the moment that everyone had been waiting for finally arrived when over the loud speaker was heard, "The winner of Homecoming Queen for 1982-1983 is Cathy Roobaert!" Cathy was crowned and congratulated. Then the Homecoming Court paraded off the field in time for the second half of the game.

Taylor fell behind A&M Consolidated during the second half and unfortunately lost the game 14-6. But the player's effort and drive was what was important and they showed this effort in never giving up, so the game was not a total loss because everyone had a good time.

For many, Saturday was spent doing last minute shopping and preparing for the semi-formal dance. Most couples dined at popular Houston restaurants before arriving at the dance.

Once inside the dance, couples stood in line for what seemed like hours to get their pictures taken. Since the theme of the Homecoming was a "Broadway Opening," a ticket booth with the sign "Sold Out" was used as a prop for the picture taking.

Like at the game, many people came to the dance and a good time was had by all. Taylor's first Homecoming was a sure success, hopefully setting a tradition for many years to come.

By Denise Davis

Returning Seniors from the Class of '82 join those of the Class of '83 in a spirit yell. The returning alumni had fun participating in the Homecoming activities and they received a reminder of what high school life is like.

HOMEcoming!

The cheerleaders prepare the run-through sign for the football players. The Homecoming game was played against the A&M Consolidated Tigers. Taylor lost this game with a score of 14-6. However, despite Taylor's loss, a good time was had by all so the first Homecoming can be considered a success. After the game, the returning alumni gathered at the school for a reunion.

Junior Sarah Suddreth contributes pennies to the Class of '84 penny jar. The Seniors contributed the most pennies and the money from all the jars was donated to charity.

Decorated cars sit in the parking lot waiting to be judged. The winners of the car decorating contest were Debra Kennedy, Senior, and the Art Club. After the cars were decorated, a caravan of cars proceeded to the KISD stadium for the game.

December — January

As December approached, students anxiously started the countdown to the Christmas holidays. The Drama Department put on an excellent production of "We Need a Little Christmas." This was an original play written by one of our own Taylor teachers, Mr. Kline. The play was a smashing success and enjoyed by everyone. Finally, on December 17, school was out for the rest of 1982.

Some students and their families took exciting skiing vacations to Keystone, Aspen, or other ski resorts around the country. Some planned for a more moderate or tropical climate by vacationing in Florida, Hawaii, or more exotic places in the Caribbean. Then there were some who just had a nice quiet Christmas at home with family and friends.

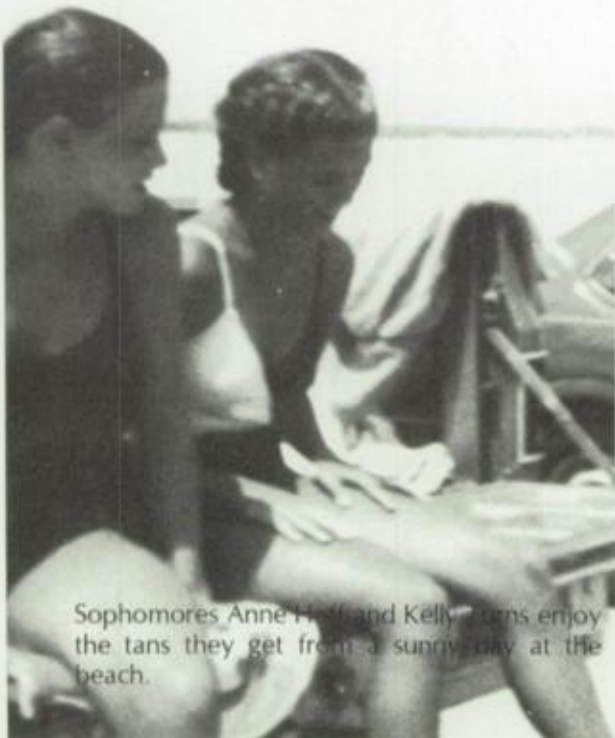

A new year had begun and that meant the last semester of school. This was the half of the year for which seniors had been waiting. Only a few more months until graduation! Along with all this, January brought semester finals. After two days of grueling tests, students were rewarded for a job well done and were given that Friday off.

To get back into the swing of things, the Annual Staff kicked off the new year with their Generic Dance on January 28. It was said to be lots of thrills, the perfect conclusion to two great months of school.

Sophomores Anne Hoff and Kelly Burns enjoy the tans they get from a sunny day at the beach.

Beach

Nancy Marcus, junior, and Misty Marley, senior, take time out of the water to cure a "MUNCHY ATTACK". It is a common occurrence for students to take their coolers filled with favorite goodies to the beach.

By

Every warm day when there is no school, one can be sure to find Taylor students at the beach. The beach is a popular place even if the weather is not picture perfect.

Popular area beaches include Surfside Beach — Freeport, and Jamaica Beach, East Beach, West Beach, and Stuart Beach — Galveston. Jamaica Beach proved to be the most popular beach with THS students.

Students go to the beach for fun, frolic, and, most of all, sun with the scent of coconut suntan lotion filling the air. Sophomore Shelley Ragsdale comments that she goes to the beach "to be with my friends, to work on my tan, and to 'scope out the guys'," while Senior Joe Buddner goes to the beach "to get some sun and to party!"

Although cleaning the sand off the body can sometimes be difficult, the fun which can be had at the beach is well worth the trouble.

Day

Senior Batt Price and Sophomore Kay Champion show their wonderful capability for dressing up before they go out on Halloween night.

Party

By

As the day is coming to an end, plans are being made for the evening.

Nights for Taylor students consist of many things. Some prefer the steady boyfriend, which means a planned date every weekend. Senior Amanda Fuller believes a perfect date is "going anywhere with Brick, either on long walks or even a midnight drive to the park."

Once on a date one may go either to Spoon or maybe Chili's, then follows a movie at Town and Country or any other nearby movie theater.

Some students enjoy the life of dancing and partying which usually means clubs. A few well known clubs Taylor students are seen at are Z-Street, Faces, or Confetti's. Senior Lynda Kerley enjoys clubs because "it lets me be me and I love to dance."

Then, of course, is everyone's favorite — PARTIES!! The Paramedics began the year with field parties. These soon faded out because the weather would no longer allow them.

No matter where Taylor students are going, they always have fun. Joe Buddner, senior, likes "to enjoy myself thoroughly." No one can deny that Taylor students love to party!

YOU'VE GOT

What's in style is always a major question everyone has when getting dressed to go somewhere. Anything that is worn is in style, whether it is country-western, preppy, punk, or a person's own unique style. Walking around school one day, seeing all these different styles, one cannot help but notice that some people have their own special look that is very hard to duplicate.

Just like any other school, Taylor has people who walk around like they just stepped out of Vogue, Glamour, or Seventeen. The basics are usually jeans and button-downs. Not being able to capture every style on campus, pictures were taken of a few students who were willing to show off their style. To be in style all one has to do is wear what best fits his own personality with a little sense of coordination.

Oh! The 50's are back!!! The biggest jump in fashion this year has been the Valley Girl trend and the look of the 50's. In department stores everywhere gals can now purchase a flouncy polka-dot dress with bobby socks and saddle oxfords to top it all off.

Guys have their own sense of style. They usually run around in jeans and shirts and twice a week they may dress up nice or preppy. They all certainly are conscientious about their appearance. Guys at Taylor looked like they stepped out of GQ or a Polo ad.

Basically styles change every day but as long as one dresses to his own satisfaction, he need not worry about being out of style.

February-March

Many exciting things happened during the months of February and March. Taylor had a great talent show turnout with many participants. The drill team traveled to Dallas for an exciting weekend of competition and fun.

February the 12th was the Valentine's Dance where a King and a Queen of Hearts was selected from each class. There were bouquet after bouquet of flowers on Valentine's Day.

During the third week of February, twenty seniors traveled to Washington for the Close-up trip. The big event there was when Debra Kennedy met President Reagan on February 25th. Meanwhile, at home, all the girls who had asked that special guy to Sadie Hawkins took them to the dance that night.

Seniors had great fun on Senior Fun Day. The whole day was filled with all kinds of games and ridiculous competitions. Everyone enjoyed the day off to get muddy, dirty, and wet.

Drill team tryouts were a big success and the cheerleaders started working hard with those wanting to tryout for cheerleader.

Finally! Time for Spring Break has arrived so everyone can now go to the beach, catch some rays, and come back all tanned for the remaining months of school. Hang on!! School is almost out!!!

Roses Are Red

As Valentines Day arrived so did a new attire for clothes and flowers, everything from carnations to roses were acceptable. These girls, junior Mandy McGinn, senior Denise Davis, senior Nina Riorden, sophomore Richelle Nemmer and junior Carrie Kennedy displayed both clothes and flowers.

As freshman Candy Barton sits in Journalism on Valentines Day she is thrilled over her flowers.

As the boring days of Geometry go on . . . excitement received six roses from boyfriend Phil Lang.

Violets Are Blue

On Valentine's Day junior Jim Bodenstedt displays his version of a Spanish Dance while junior Steve Reeves jells on his flowers from an admirer.

Be My Valentine

Valentine's Day is celebrated on February 14th as a festival of romance and affection. Everyone in Taylor sends greeting cards to their sweethearts, friends, and family members. Verses on many valentines contain tender thoughts, other valentines include humorous pictures and sayings, but almost all request to "Be My Valentine."

The day brings much excitement to all students at Taylor. Every girl wonders who will send her flowers, a secret admirer or her sweetheart. The office was filled with all kinds of flowers from carnations to daisies to roses.

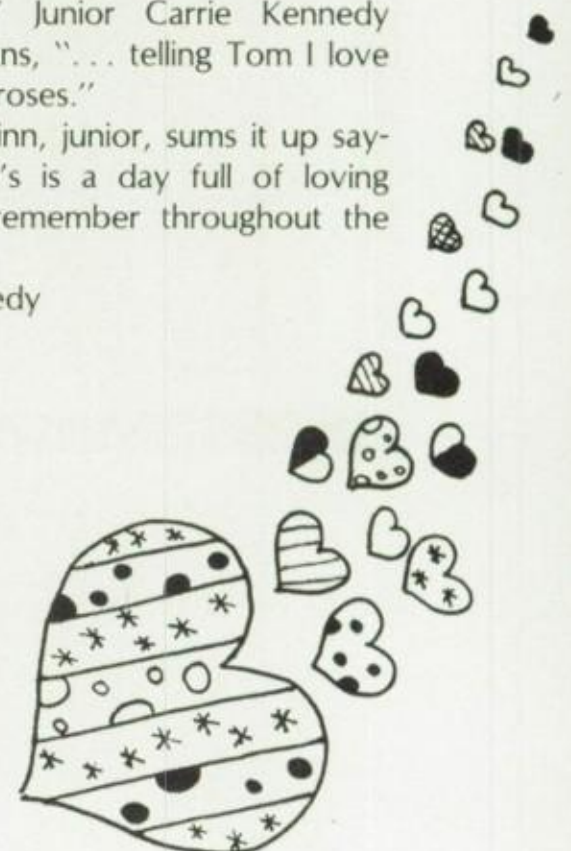

Every student at Taylor believes Valentine's Day means something different. Senior Amanda Fuller says Valentine's Day means "Roses and Brick." As for Junior Leanne Priddy, Valentine's Day means, "Me and Mike being in love and my promise ring." Junior Carrie Kennedy believes it means, "... telling Tom I love him and lots of roses."

Mandy McGinn, junior, sums it up saying, "Valentine's is a day full of loving memories to remember throughout the year."

Twenty Seniors See

As the senior closeup participants started on their jaunt of fun and frolic to Washington D.C., one could not help but be excited. Twenty Taylor seniors participated in the events which took place during one week in Washington D.C.

To begin with, the students unwillingly woke up at 4:00 a.m. to prepare for their journey. Dragging their feet onto the airplane, the students passed the comfortable first class section only to be placed in the close quarters of the tourist section. Students were nervously excited when the plane took off the ground. Then, when the plane reached the correct altitude, breakfast was served. "I chose the Spanish omelet because real men don't eat quiche!" exclaimed John Frels when asked of what the breakfast menu consisted.

When the plane landed, the students were excited to see the clumps of snow covering the ground. The events began that evening, with students attending the first session then returning to their comfortable rooms at the Hyatt Regency.

Other events included viewing a play entitled "Screen Play," having dinner at Chucky Cheese's Pizza, attending several sessions on the basics of law and government, and meeting Texas Representative Bill Archer. Debra Kennedy had the privilege of talking with President Reagan live on national television. And one cannot forget the story of Chris Stokes and Pat Thomas discovering women's undergarments beneath their mattress. Needless to say they dutifully hung them on the light fixtures in the hallway of the hotel.

Although the students had loads of fun and were sad to leave their new friends, they were also looking forward to going home and returning to their normal routine. The trip was a wonderful learning experience for the seniors. All in all, the closeup trip was a successful one. By Denise Davis

Seniors John Frels, Susan Poston, Kristin Gardell, and Krista Dedivitis pose with the one and only Chucky Cheese.

Seniors Liz Berner, Stephanie Normand, Jim Stroud, John Frels, Debra Kennedy, and Lori Biggs enjoy the flight to Washington. However, they did complain about the close-quartered seating of the tourist section.

One closeup participant from each school was able to meet and speak with President Ronald Reagan. Debra Kennedy was chosen from THS.

And We'll Have Fun, Fun, Fun . . .

Although Senior Fun Day, March 16, 1983, began with gray skies and drizzling mist, the day turned out to be one of good times and much excitement.

Activities beginning the day included Sunkissing, a game in which students passed oranges from shoulder to shoulder; the Balloon Bust, or water-balloon toss; Senior Breakfast, an egg eating contest; the UFO Throw, or frisbee toss; and the Wacky Relay, a relay which involved a wagon pull, a scissor run, and a hop to the finish line. Other morning activities included a penny search in a swimming pool of flour, a baseball game with food, the three-legged race, and the "War of '83" tug-of-war contest.

Seniors then ate lunch. Dosier's catered a Bar-B-Que lunch consisting of a barbeque sandwich, baked beans, potato salad, and pickles for $4.00. Seniors who did not eat the barbeque either brought their lunches, ate junkfood from the concession stand, or fasted. Lunch ended with a food fight — potato salad and beans were flying everywhere.

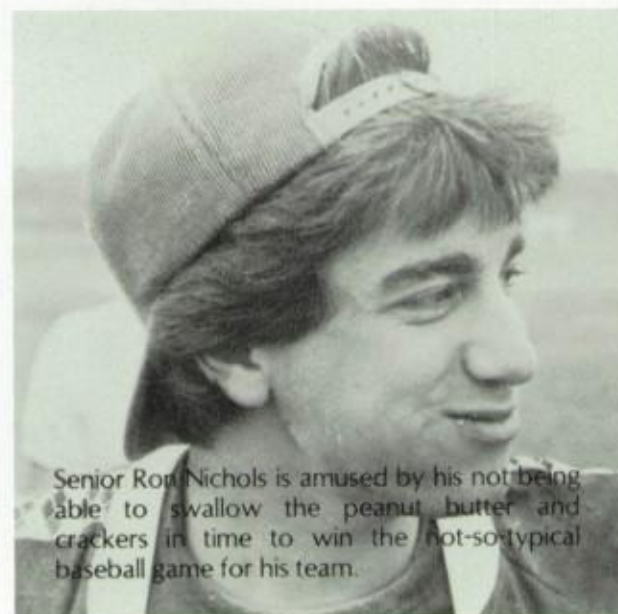

Activities resumed after lunch with Chicken Termination, an egg toss; the Pepsi Challenge, a game whose object was for a girl standing up straight to totally fill an empty Coke can resting on a lying down boy's head; and the Suitcase Race in which relay teams took turns putting on articles of clothing from a suitcase.

The day ended with I Shot the Senior, a game in which the girls cleaned whipped cream off of the boys' faces by using a watergun; the Indy 500, or wheelbarrow race; and finally Greased Lightning, a race to determine who could catch a greased pig first.

The activities ended before the day was over so seniors were dismissed from school at 2:10. "Even though it was icky and raining outside and I walked around with flour stuck to my body most of the day, I still had a great time!" exclaimed Nina Riordan.
By Denise Davis

Several senior girls participate in chasing "greased lightning" while others stand against the fence to prevent pig from running into it. This event ended the day of fun for the seniors.

Senior Ron Nichols is amused by his not being able to swallow the peanut butter and crackers in time to win the not-so-typical baseball game for his team.

Senior Penny Lemoine was an excellent participant in the baseball game as one can see from the pudding on her face. "I really enjoyed myself," said Penny.

Seniors Karen Soychak, Leza Blackburn, Steph Katz, Sheri McNeely and Denise Reading demonstrate their skill in the Pepsi Challenge game.

Seniors Willie Kirkpatrick and Tom Casey prepare for the UFO Throw finals as other senior guys look on.

Seniors Linda Wills, Sidny Cook, Kelley Lindsey, Darin Alley, Tommy Grant, Jim Rossman, Emily Rucker, David Mathieu, and Will Hilton demonstrate the fun they were having as they prepare for the Wacky Relay.

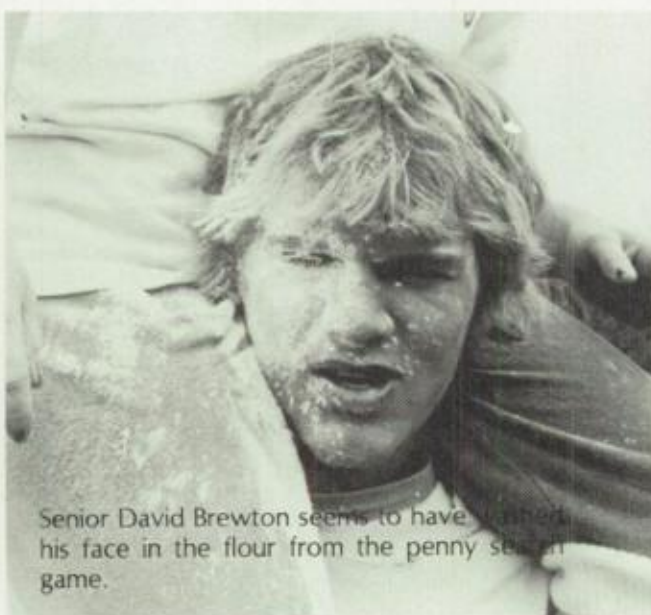

Senior Billy Wright takes his turn in the suitcase race as others laugh at his ridiculous guise.

Seniors Sheri McNeely, Emily Rucker, and Denise Reading all seem to be mentally preparing for the race ahead before the beginning of the Wacky Relay.

Senior Marty Gouge tries to keep his balance as Jay Freeman shoves a banana in his mouth during the baseball game.

Senior David Brewton seems to have washed his face in the flour from the penny steam game.

Senior Mark Owings takes a great pleasure in viewing team members stuff their faces with peanut butter and cracker sandwiches, Richard Bailey showing how it's done.

The World Is But

The drama department has had an exceptionally exciting year, one of the best ones since they started at Taylor. Through hours of preparation, rehearsals, and all the behind the scenes work, the drama department turned out three great plays, "Tom Jones", "We Need a Little Christmas", written by one of our own Taylor teachers, Mr. Jim Kline, and the biggest hit of all, the one-act play, "The Imaginary Invalid".

This play swept through district and regional competitions and also took state by storm. Paige Pengra, junior, and Billy Wright, senior, received best actress and best actor while the rest of the cast received many honors as well.

Anticipating the win at State, Leza Blackburn, senior, was heard to say, "This play is the best ever and we're going to knock them dead at State."

When the drama students returned from State Senior Joe Buddner said, "It was more relaxed at State because the actors played well due to good audience response."

The one-act play was the most exciting play of the drama department's year.

By Angela Waltman

Junior Stuart Hemelstein does an excellent job of playing the homosexual apothecary in the "Imaginary Invalid". Stuart was heard to say, "It definitely was not the most desired role in the production."

"Do I really have to say these lines?" asks Nathan Todd, sophomore, as he professes his undying love for Senior Heidi Busch in the one act play, "Imaginary Invalid".

Freshmen Melissa Deitz and Kirsten Savallisch show their acting ability in the Christmas musical as they play with toys under the Christmas tree while the cast is singing "We Wish You a Merry Christmas".

A Stage at Taylor!!

Up it, Mike, this is only a play!", said Senior Bennett McCarroll as Senior Mike Lauw strangles him in a scene from "Tom Jones" play.

As the infamous innkeeper in the "Tom Jones" play, Senior Leza Blackburn receives pay for room and board.

Senior Billy Wright was quoted as saying, "The cast of the "Imaginary Invalid" has been struck with the case of the Floating Arms Syndrome.

April-May

Only two months of school left. As April started with spring break still fresh in everyone's mind, it was hard to get back in the swing of things when school started on April 4. It wasn't long, however, until the weekend when students had a blast up at the famous University of Texas "Round-up." The students then had a holiday on April 15, as teachers had an inservice.

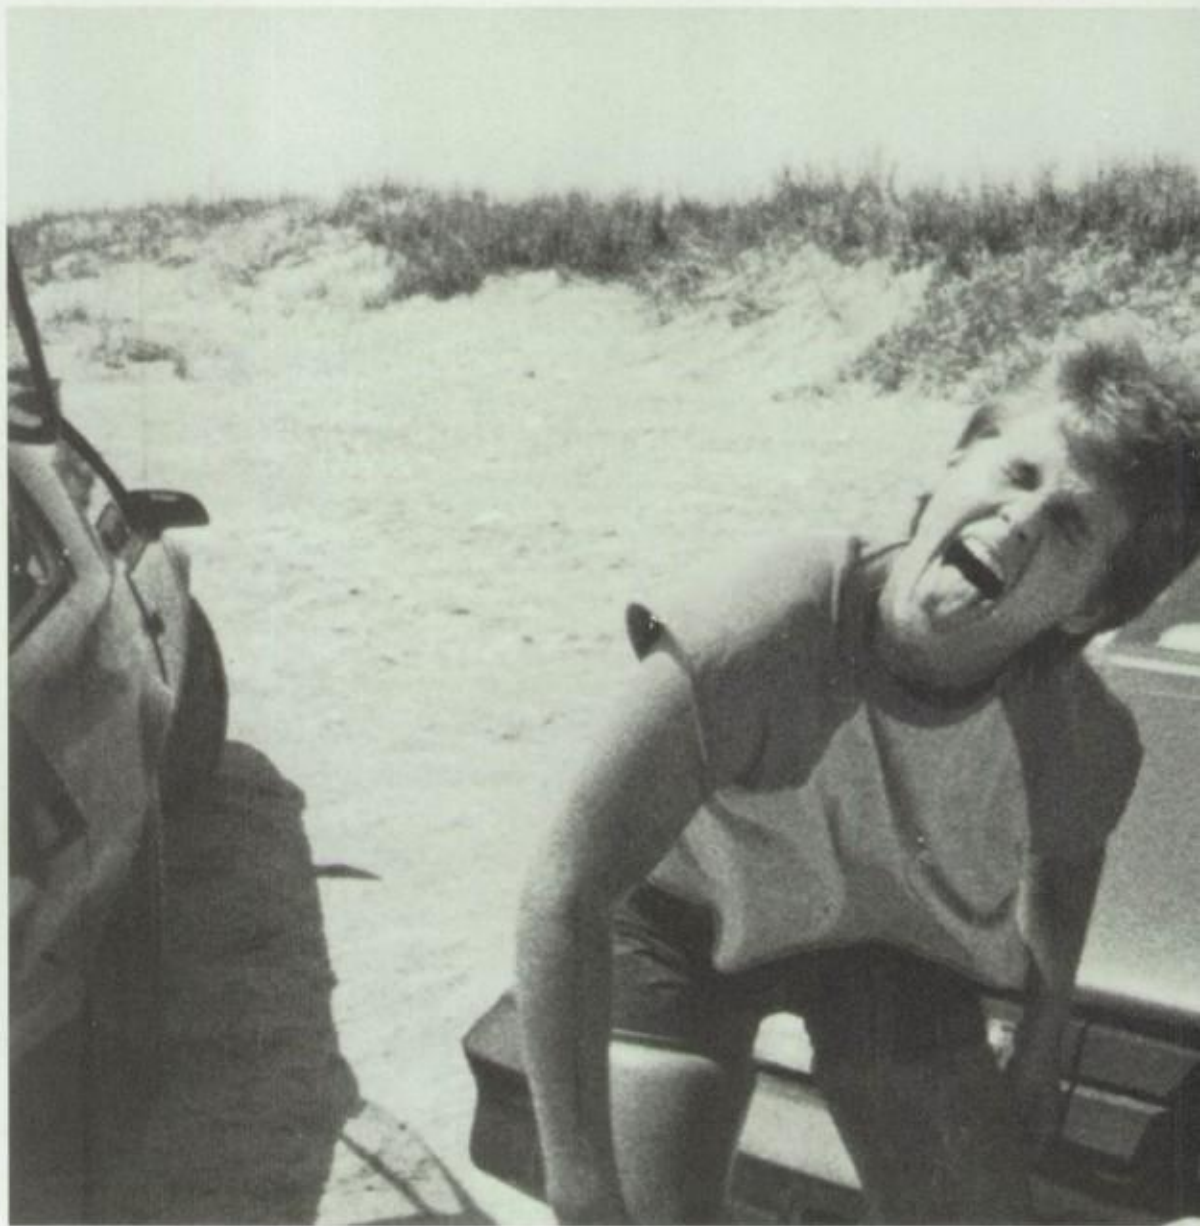

One of the big highlights of the month was when the Taylor High coaches challenged the Katy High coaches to a basketball game in which the Mustangs defeated the Tigers. Seniors had a nice surprise on the 21st, when meeting in the Commons, class favorites were announced for the Class of '83. Also on this day, our new Mustang mascot, Lesley Carpenter, was announced. To wind up the month, the juniors had a dance on the 30th featuring a local band, the DIG.

The month of May started with seniors anxiously counting the days to graduation. With the excitement of the art show and the Industrial Arts fair, the last weeks flew by. With only a few days left until the end of school, the seniors had many assemblies regarding prom and graduation.

Underclassmen spent the remaining days studying for finals, making next year's schedules and planning a fun summer.

Prom was a special evening for all seniors. The Grand was a beautiful setting and the evening was a big success.

AN EVENING

Taylor's second annual senior prom, May 14, was an event that was looked forward to by all attending.

The weekend began with many seniors attending a breakfast at Jojo's and Barry's Deli on Friday morning. Many seniors wore their senior t-shirts for the last time.

After school on Friday, seniors either picked up their tuxedos or shopped for last minute items. Friday night, seniors either slept in anticipation of a sleepless weekend, prepared for a breakfast party after prom, or simply went "out on the town" as they usually did on Friday nights.

Finally Saturday came and seniors spent the day preparing for the evening. Girls spent hours getting ready so that they could look absolutely beautiful when their handsome prince came to pick them up. Meanwhile, the guys made sure that their cars (or limos) would be perfect for the evening. Parents were prepared to take many pictures when the date arrived.

After all of the picture taking was finished, most seniors went to fancy restaurants for dinner. Restaurants attended included Tony's, Vargo's, the Great Caruso, the Rivoli, and Brennan's among others.

When dinner was finished, seniors proceeded to the Grand Hotel on Westheimer where the prom was held. The Main Ballroom of the Grand was decorated with flowers, streamers, and masques made by members of the senior class. A gazebo also made by senior class members stood in the center of the room and served as a punch fountain. The seniors danced to music supplied by Doppelganger and enjoyed magic tricks from a magician named Mark. They received party favors such as keepsake booklets and brandy glasses.

After the prom, many seniors attended breakfasts. The prom was extremely successful with the turnout being larger than had actually been planned. Seniors, teachers, and underclassmen all enjoyed the prom.

I don't want

After four years of hard work and fun, high school was coming to a close for the senior class of 1983. Many would further their education by attending college while others entered the working world.

Cathy Maywald, senior, said, "I will spend two months in Fort Dix attending Basic Training, I will then proceed to Fort Benjamin Harris in Indiana for my AIT training. After this I will spend four years at the University of Houston."

"I'm going to Aggie U to study biomedical engineering and premedicine," said Senior Julie Hope.

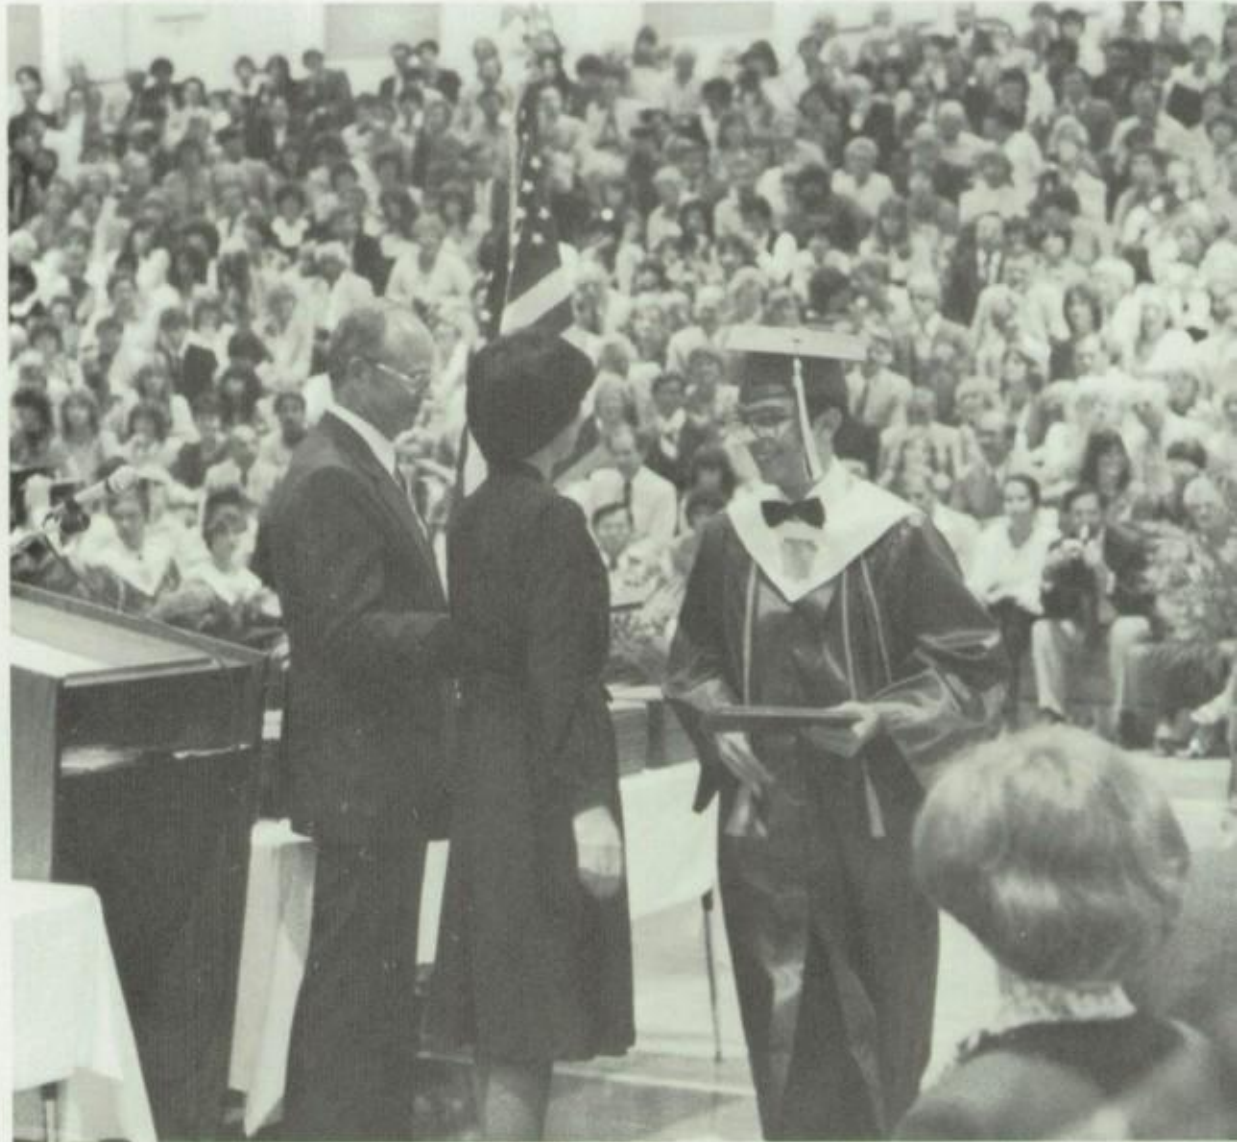

While some students felt their four years at Taylor went by at a snail's pace, others felt the time just flew.

"Without realizing how soon everything would be over, my excitement for graduation further enhanced the passing of time. I enjoyed the people very much. I really hate to leave because there are a lot of people that I have known for a long time that I'll probably lose contact with," said Senior Daryn Seidl.

Senior Stef Katz commented that "my first three years in high school were timed just right and my senior year flew by."

Although some students would never admit it, everyone would feel a little bit saddened by the end of their high school years. Graduation was definitely a milestone in everyone's life that marked the end of their childhood and the beginning of independence.

Senior Class Shines

"It's been a fine learning experience. I've gained a great deal academically, and I'm looking forward to studying hard in the years to come," said Billy Wright, member of the infamous Class of 1983, of his final year at Taylor.

At any given time of the 1982-83 year approximately 357 individuals, the seniors, were counting down the days they had left to spend at James E. Taylor Senior High School. As that time neared, the Class of '83 was busy with senior pictures, invitations to graduation, preparations for prom, and everything else that needed to be done to complete the year. Seniors were assigned to will, prophecy, fund-raising, and other various committees to prepare for the end of May.

College bound seniors took the SAT or ACT tests, applied to colleges, and waited for their letter of acceptance. It sounded easy, but the SAT wasn't the typical multiple choice type test. After three hours of filling in bubbles early on a Saturday morning, seniors began to wonder if it was really worth it. Applications weren't exactly the easiest things to fill out either, they were rather time consuming. The hardest part of all, though, was waiting and hoping that the acceptance letter would arrive in the mail.

The year wasn't all hard work. Seniors did have their share of fun. At the beginning of the year, weekends were spent in the sun; and many of these were spent at the beach. Although Galveston wasn't Hawaii, it was still a beach. The tar and murky water didn't keep the sun-worshippers away.

As the weather began to turn cool and football season approached, Friday nights were spent at the games cheering on the Mustangs. There was always a party on the weekend and Sundays were great to spend at the park. When the warm weather was back, seniors headed back to the beach.

As the year came to a close and graduation came nearer and nearer, the seniors began to reflect on the time spent at Taylor not with animosity, but with the realization that it really was some of the best years of their life. Perhaps Derek Wolfe and Kim Romine, seniors, expressed the spirit of all of the Class of '83 when they said, "This year has been fun, but we don't envy the seniors of '84."

The Awaited Moment

"You can't drink, you can't drive, you're the class of '85," exclaimed seniors during a pep rally. This was one of the many yells seniors had to respond to lowerclassman cheers.

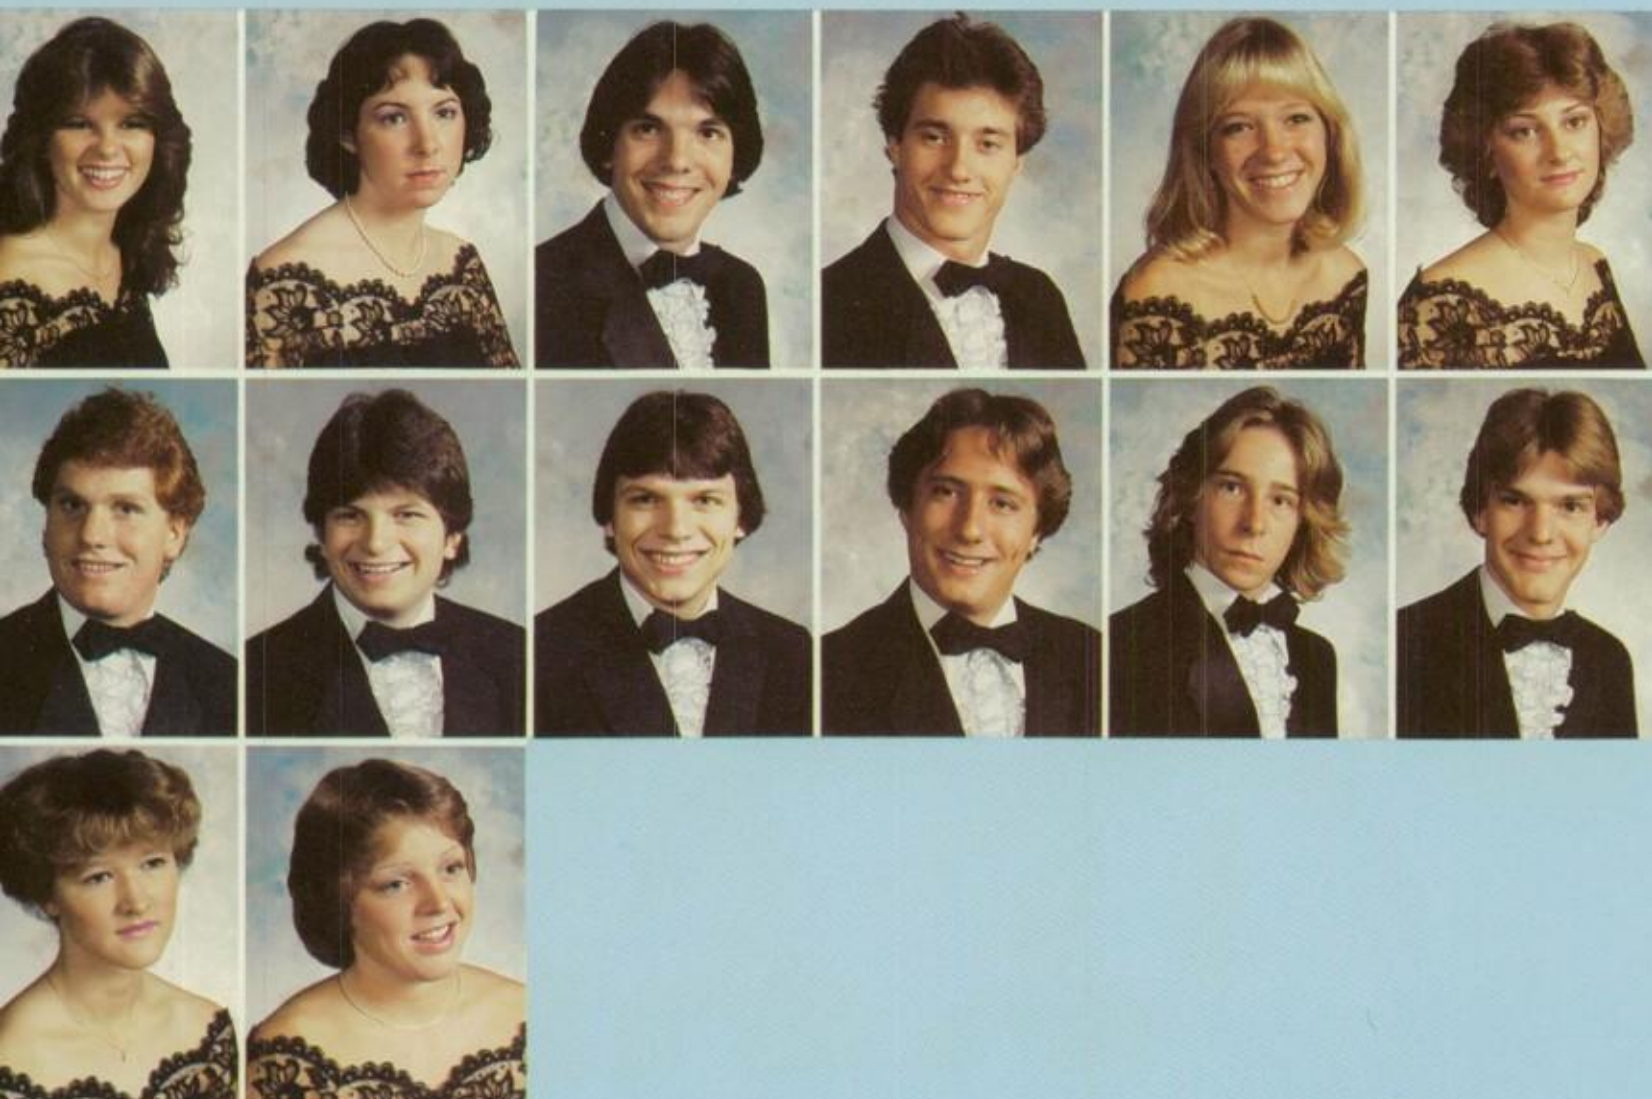

"I've finally made Senior Class Treasurer," said senior John Frels. John made this triumphant statement to the photographer at the Grand Hotel during the TAJD convention.

One of the main things of being a senior was getting involved. Getting involved was one way of meeting friends and having a great time. Taking advantage of every aspect of school life kept the seniors well on their toes. However, along with the distinction of being a senior came the responsibilities that many people faced. Among these, were the problems of gaining admission to a college. For months seniors considered this priority in their lives.

Class moneymaking projects were not unique to seniors. Some moneymaking projects over the years were: two movies, "Love at First Bite" and "The Twelve Chairs," shown during the freshman year; tons of candy sold during the sophomore and junior years; and finally, during the senior year, the "Class of '83" dance.

Graduation announcements were made available by the Balfour Company in November. Prom was set for May 14 at the Grand Hotel. Graduation exercises were set for the 21st of May and suddenly the seniors began to realize that this was the moment for which they had all been waiting.

Class of '84 . . . JUNIORS!!!

Junior Paula Hudock is writing a rough draft for a research paper. Research papers are one of the things underclassmen dread and juniors have many more their senior year and all through college.

John Freeman, junior, searches for the answers to The Workshop questions in his American History book. American History is one of the more interesting courses required for juniors. It gives them a look at what it was like during the start of the U.S. till the present.

Junior Jason Normand is one of many students who is learning a skill in shop class. In shop class students make various items out of wood and metal.

Juniors . . . Graduating

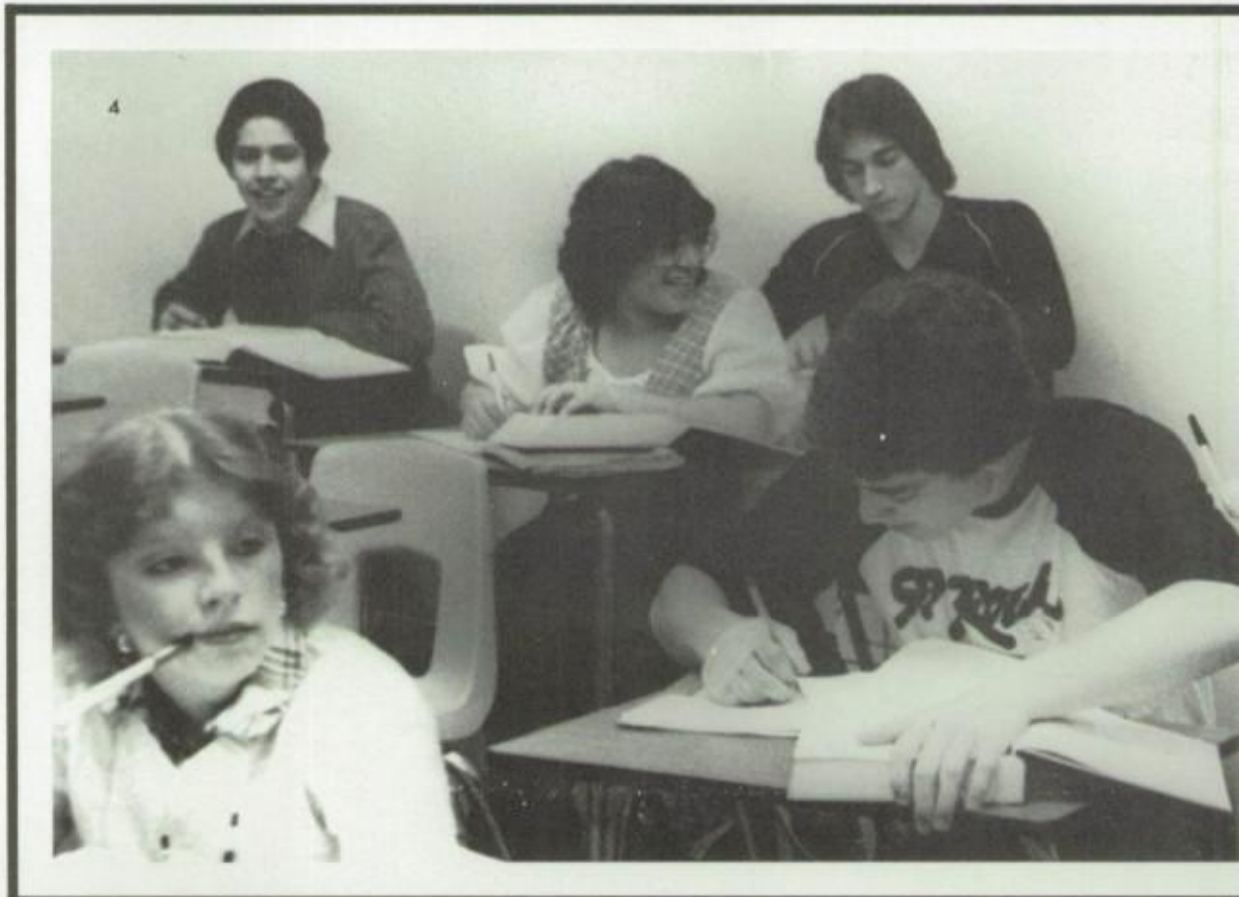

Year after year, day after day, class period after class period, the thrills of high school wear off.

As a freshman it was all new — the getting lost on the way to class and the getting crushed in the halls. As a sophomore, there was just the joy of not being a freshman anymore. Skipping the junior year momentarily, once the senior year rolls around the realization of graduation surfaces.

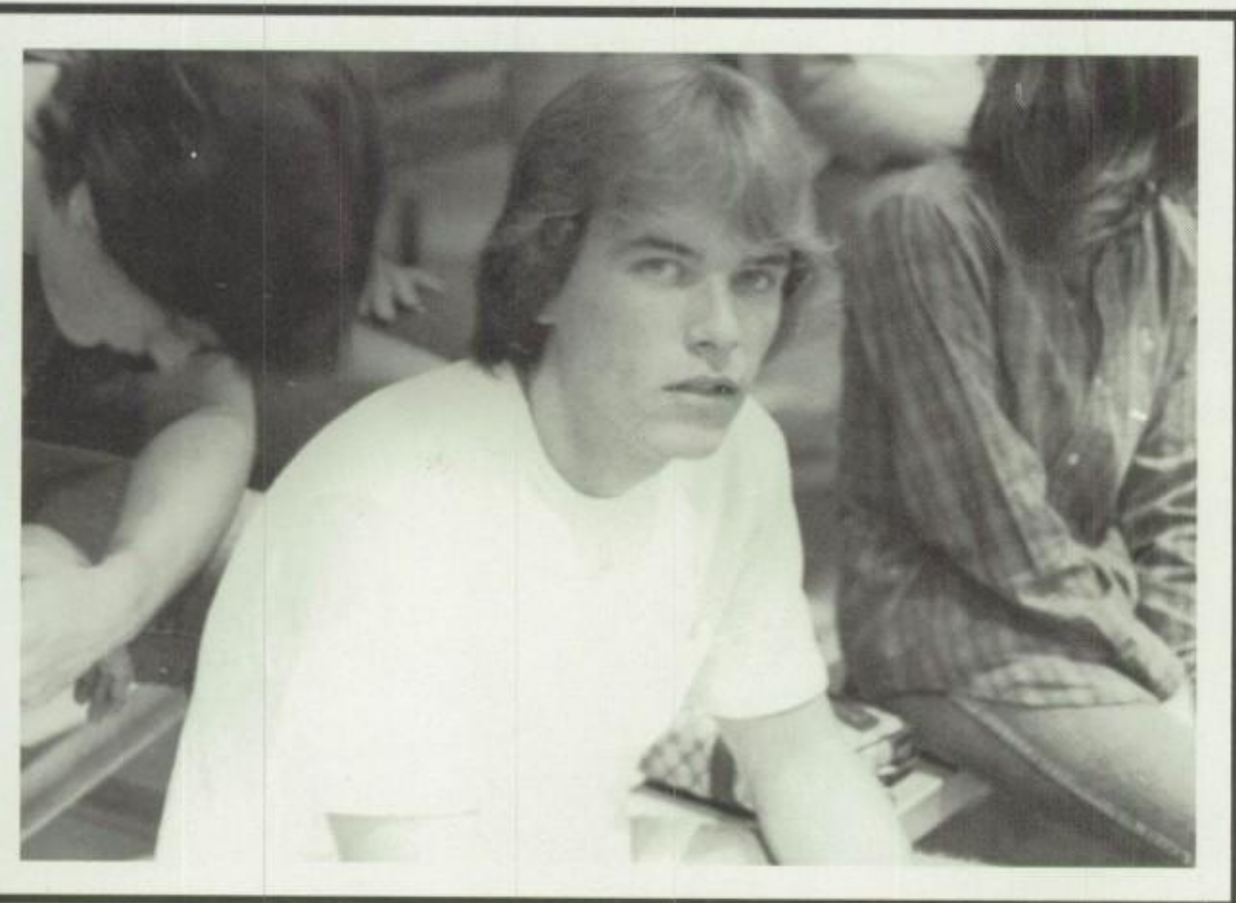

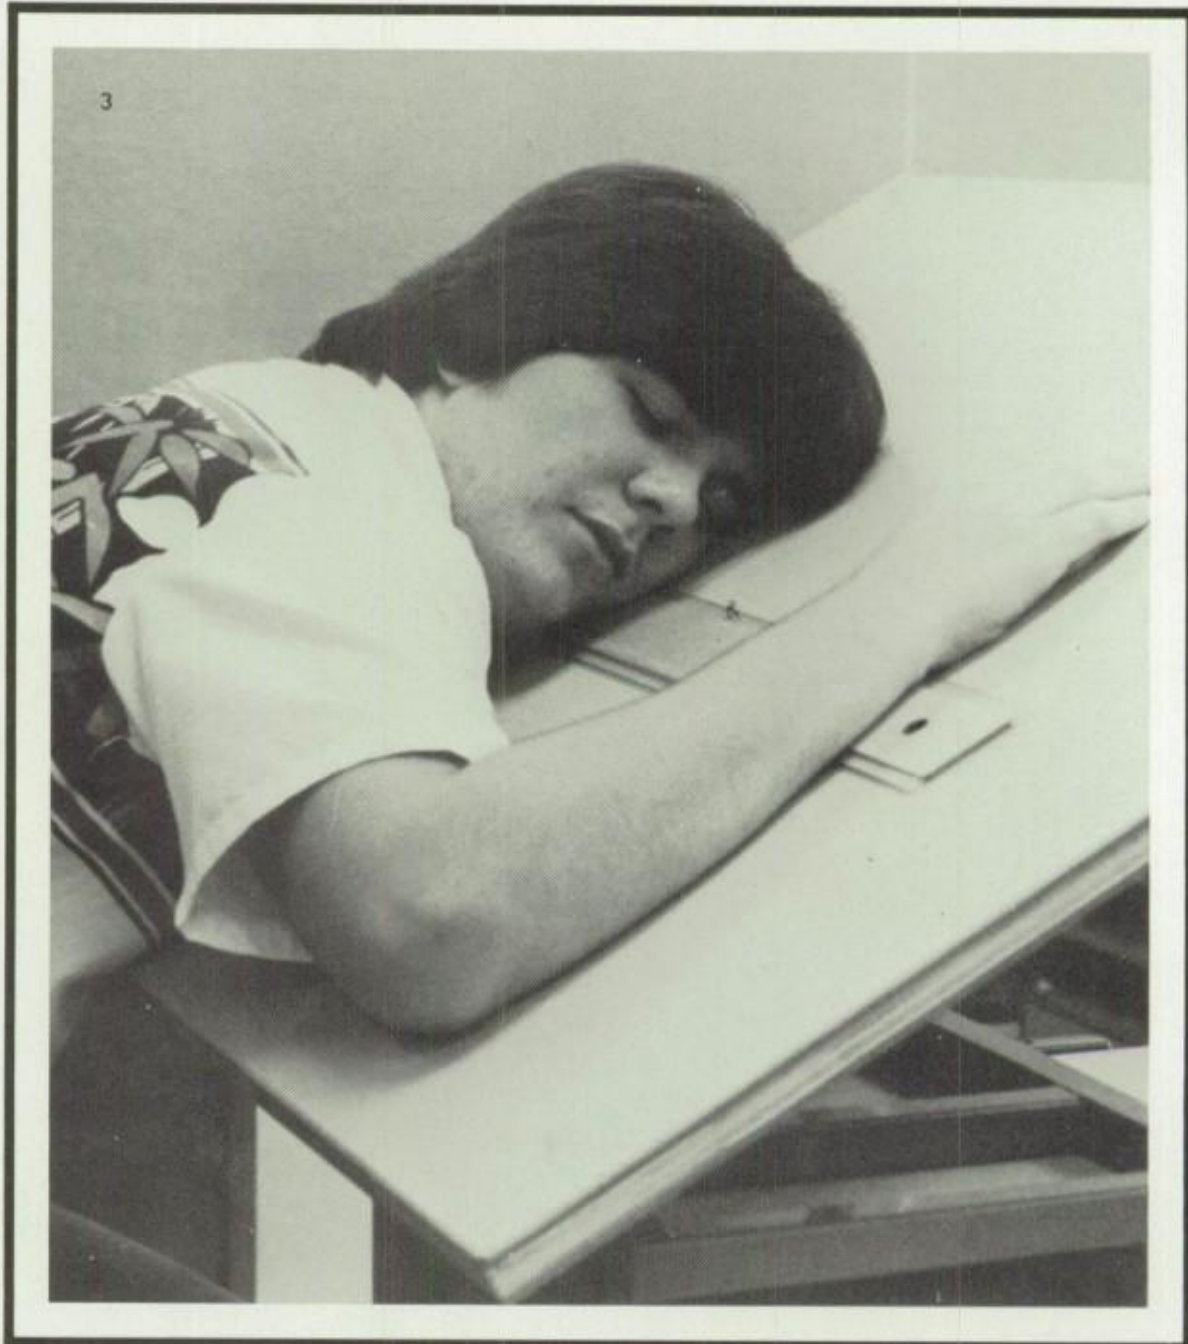

But it's the junior year that is most feared. For along with it comes what is most often called "Senioritis." This disease is so named because it brings out symptoms such as the desire to be finished with school, trying to have five or less classes per day, and last but not least, longing for parking privileges.

Even though it is called "Senioritis," the juniors also suffer from it.

Class of 1984!!!

1. Junior David Howard has everything going for him! David not only is on the Varsity Football Team but also on the National Honor Society.

2. Best friends, Juniors Cathy O'Lenick, Sherry Heath, and Danielle Sampey do everything together! It's been our hardest year in school, but we've stuck together through the good and bad!

3. Jeff Washmon, junior takes a well needed break from drafting. Jeff placed in regionals and went on to state in both drafting and photography.

4. Boldly attacking his assignment, Junior Mike Saltal works on a paper in his English book, while Junior Shannon McElroy looks on in thought.

5. Attending a Water Polo game at the THS pool, Junior Chris Blood looks as if the Mustangs are losing.

While other juniors were doing their research papers in the library for English III, Michelle Castillo and Beth White were reading the recent issues of Rolling Stones and Seventeen magazines.

Sitting on the floor next to the Christmas tree, the little boy plays with a toy car made possible by Project Share. Without this non-profit organization, there would be no Santa Claus to visit the little boy's house.

The goal of Project Share was to collect toys for needy children in the Houston area.

"Project Share tries to get kids to see that there are a lot of needy people out there. As a school, we can help make Christmas more meaningful for some kids, after all, they're what Christmas is all about," said Assistant Principal Dr. Roy Mendez.

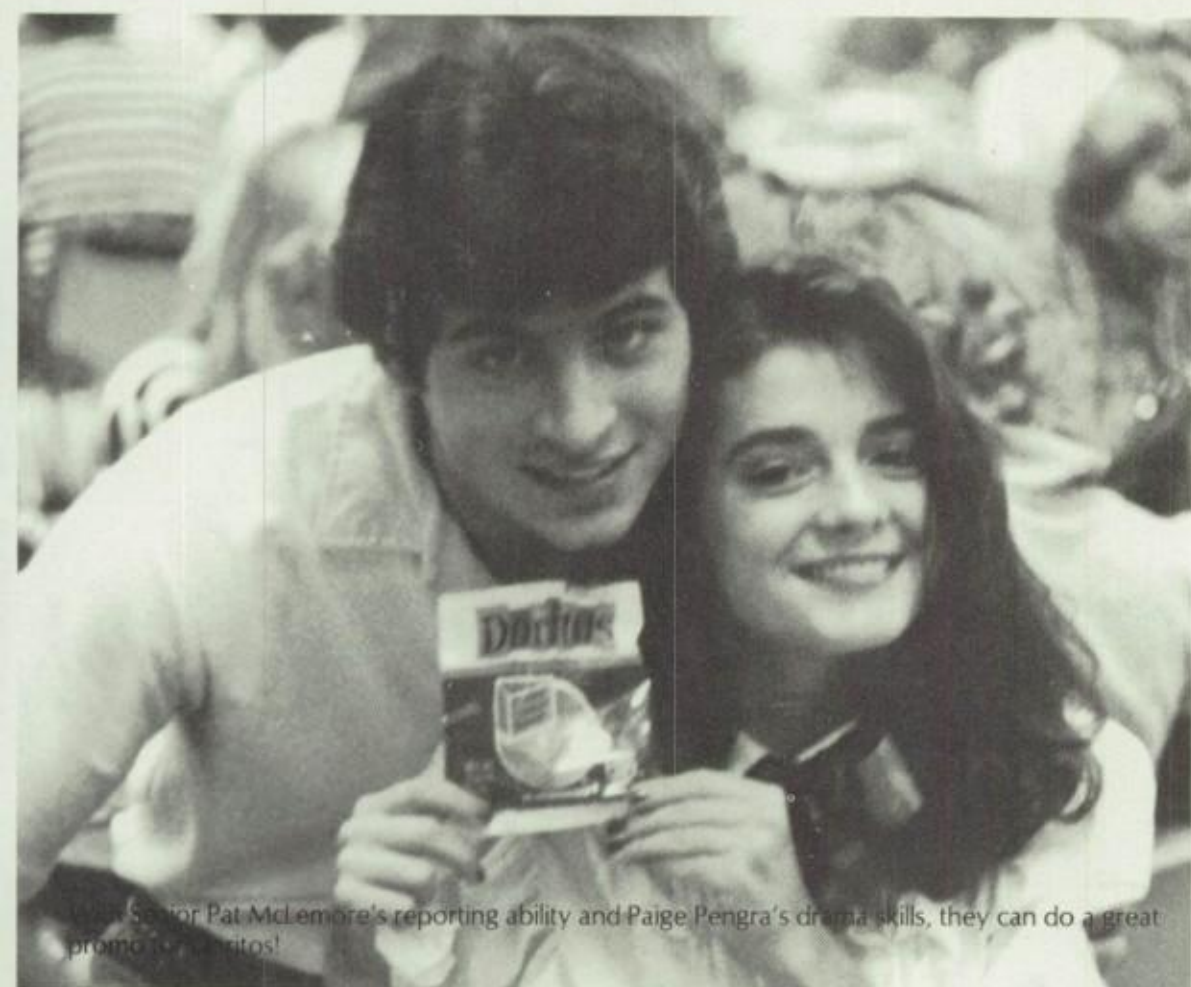

Having read an article about Project Share in the Houston Chronicle, Dr. Mendez decided that it would be a good idea to introduce the program to the school.

Students and faculty agree that the program is beneficial.

"I think the idea of Project Share is very good, not only for the kids receiving the toys, but also for the kids giving them as well," said Cora Polsgrove, counselors secretary.

David Mathiew, senior, added, "I think Project Share is a good idea because it's a community service and it gives me a good feeling to be able to share what I have with those less fortunate.

What comes to mind when you think of a sophomore? Dull, maybe? Joe Buddner, senior, says, "I believe sophomores think they're bad because they aren't freshmen any more." Richelle Nemmer, sophomore, simply exclaimed, "Oh, PUHLEEZ!!"

It seems to be the popular opinion of all who have experienced this insignificant year of high school that the sophomore year doesn't hold much excitement. It can be classified as a stage between the freshman syndrome and the upperclassman "cool." On the other hand, many sophomores experience new horizons when they receive the dreaded driver's license.

When asked what they do in their spare time, several sophomores exclaimed that the video games "Pac-Man" and "Defender" were favorite pastimes. Joey Berner, a sophomore, says, "I like to watch T.V. and eat." Another sophomore, Steve Olmstead, says, "On weekends I stay home, sleep, lift weights, and eat vitamins." One just couldn't ask for more fun!

Despite these humdrum statements, most sophomores agree that parties have priority in their social life and all are looking forward to their upperclassman years.

The sophomore class sponsored the annual Valentine's Day Dance in the Taylor High School Commons on Saturday, February 12, with entertainment provided by Horizon. This along with the selling of THS bumper stickers and pens, served as one of the money-making projects of the class.

Among the many festivities at the dance, a King and Queen of Hearts were chosen. Each class nominated and elected their King and Queen representatives during the previous week.

The winners for each class were: J. P. Watkins and Kelly Fitzpatrick for the freshmen, Steve Ohlmstead and Jennifer Elrod as the sophomore representatives, Steve Atkinson and Shelly Theis were chosen by the junior class, and Darin Alley and Gayle McAteer were the King and Queen of Hearts for the senior class.

The dance was semi-formal and most students enjoyed getting dressed up for the special occasion. Sophomore Shelley Ragsdale said, "It was really neat seeing everyone all dressed up." However, Paul Bayliss, another sophomore stated, "I think it was totally unnecessary."

The trips consisted of bus rides to Katy's Outdoor Learning Center where students could observe nature. "It was so hot that some girl fainted, but it was worth it," said Sophomore Jim Simon.

For three hours watching various animals such as snakes, rabbits, and birds in their habitats served as a learning experience for the Biology I students. The students also heard a guest speaker.

Class of '86 . . . Class of '86 . . .

At the beginning of the year a freshman could be easily identified by an upperclassman. From the first day school started, it was easy to pick out the "fish." They were the students wearing the same clothes, the same hairstyle, and the same look of fear! As the weeks went on, freshmen became known as the "little kids" who lugged around every book in their locker and ran from class to class to avoid the dreaded tardy. They were the ones who stood in line to call mom for a ride home after any after-school event. To sophomores, juniors, and seniors these little freshman frolics may seem childish. Yet, chances are, that it has not occurred to these upperclassmen that they were in their shoes at one time. Freshmen will soon pick up on the ways of their upperclassmates just as the new freshmen come to Taylor. They will also say the things as the sophomores, juniors, and seniors of the 1982-83 school year. They will probably not even remember that they once were freshmen too!

By Cathy O'lenick

Freshman Lisa Kim yells, "GO YEAH MIGHTY MUSTANGS", at the top of her lungs at a pep assembly in the gym. The freshmen started the pep rally season off very slow, but they finally got the hang of it there was no stopping them!

ACADEMICS

Different Ways To

Besides taking the required math courses in high school, many students at Taylor are signing up for advanced math courses such as Trigonometry/E.A. and Calculus.

During their first two years, students are required to take Algebra I and Geometry. Areas taught in these classes include solving polynomials, open sentences, systems of equations, and functions and their graphs. "Algebra was easy at the beginning of the year, but now it's getting hard," said Freshman Carrie Mitchell.

After finishing with Algebra I, students face new problems such as proofs, theorems, angle and line relationships, and figure constructions in Geometry. As Lara Stone, sophomore, expresses, "Proofs can get really complicated because there are more than one way to solve them. You need to memorize many theorems and definitions just to get started."

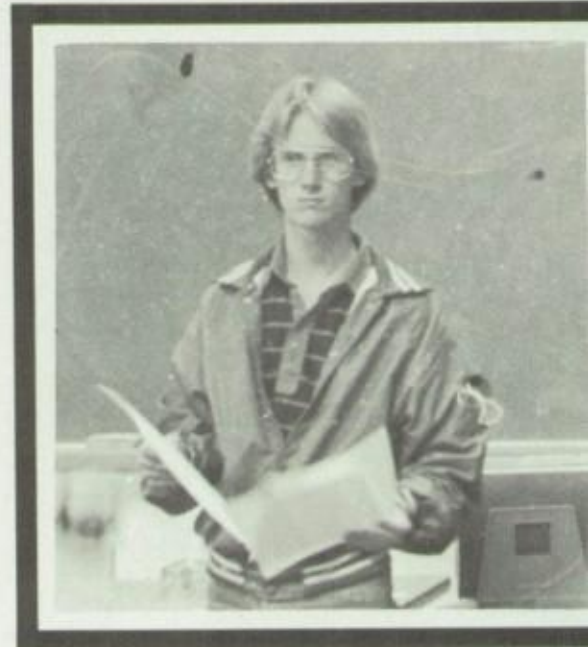

For those who wish to advance into higher mathematics, Algebra II, Trigonometry/E.A., and Calculus are offered. Just as Algebra II involves conic sections, logarithms, and matrices, trigonometry includes the study of sine and cosine functions, and the effects of parameters. "They're not easy, but they make you think logically," expressed Junior Danny Wagner.

Keeping up with the lessons in calculus is difficult. "You have to do homework every night so you won't fall behind," said Senior Debbie Ohmstead. Despite this, Debbie enjoys calculus because she finds it "challenging" and thinks that "it is a privilege to be in it."

Most students who take advanced math courses all agree that trigonometry and calculus help to prepare them for college. "Especially if you're getting an engineering or math degree, you really need to have some exposure to upper level math. Knowing the basics of the course before you hit the theory will make it much easier," comments Mrs. McLennan, a calculus teacher.

Writing With

"To be or not to be, that is the question . . ."
This phrase was familiar to almost everyone, but not many people were aware of its origin. However, any senior knew well that this phrase was first written by the renowned playwright, William Shakespeare, in his play Hamlet.

In fact, any senior who graduated from high school was thoroughly familiar with famous lines from Julius Caesar and Romeo and Juliet. To many students, English may mean spelling, grammar, and vocabulary. But to be more specific, English also covered literature as well as composition writing.

In many senior English classes, the emphasis was placed on composition. Students wrote different types of five paragraph themes, a critical essay, and a research paper. Aside from this, seniors also studied a section on sonnets, poetries, and prose from well known literary figures in England. After having read these, they either did a project or wrote a theme on these particular works. Once in a while, seniors did get breaks from weekly theme writing, spelling, and vocabulary. Movies such as Hamlet and Clash of the Titans were shown in order to have helped them to understand more about the novel or the play which they had just read.

Similar to senior English, junior English was based on the same structure. In English III, many juniors studied about the different writer of the Realistic, Puritanistic, and Romantic eras, along with their significance in American Literature. In average English classes, juniors read The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn and The Crucible. They had also done a research paper on a topic of their own interest. For example, Todd Smith, junior, did his research paper on national defense because he was interested in how the United States defends itself. Though Todd admitted that it was not hard, he did say that his paper was very long. However, in honors English, many juniors had found that English was not just twenty spelling words and thirty vocabulary words every week, but it was also a poetry notebook due one week, and a critical essay due in the next several weeks. Throughout the year, these students are kept busy with such projects as reading novels, writing critical essays, write on any topic that we wished. It was fun, but time consuming!" After having spent long hours on these projects, many juniors asked themselves if there really was life after honors English!

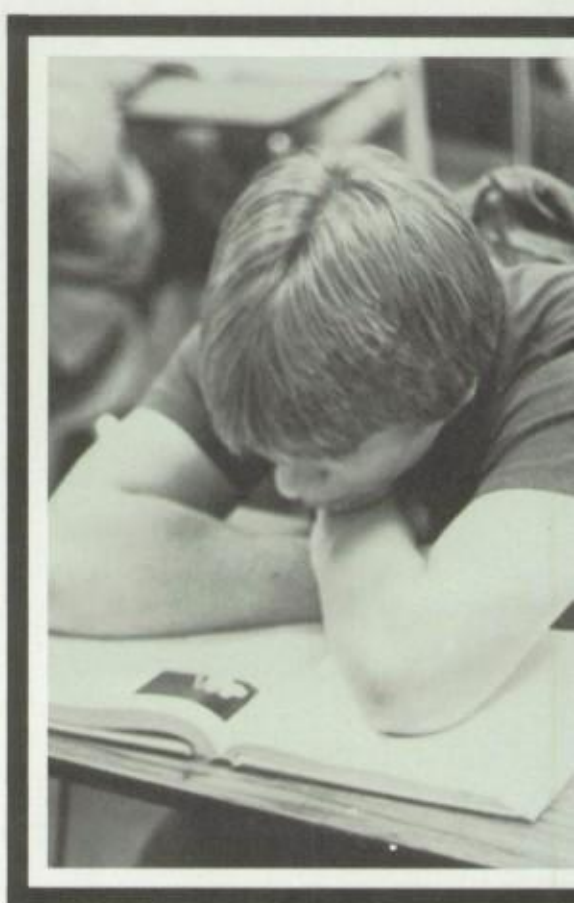

Among the different excerpts that sophomores read in their literature text, probably the most interesting was Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. In preparation for English III, sophomores also read novels such as The Great Gatsby and Animal Farm. They also wrote many five paragraph themes and a research paper. To help with their writing skills, sophomores also spent time studying the parts of speech, reorganizing irregular verbs, and distinguishing verbals.

and researching for research papers. Aside from these, juniors also had a chance to be creative with projects such as short story and poetry writing. Barbara Bryan, Junior, expresses, "I enjoyed the fact that we were allowed to

Even the freshmen weren't exclude from the joy of reading famous plays. Each year, they read the Shakespearean love story, Romeo and Juliet. They not only read the play, but also analyzed the story, listened to its record, watched the movie, and completed a Romeo and Juliet notebook. Freshmen also spent time reviewing sentence structures, and verb agreements. A major part of grammar is diagramming different types of sentences which included simple and complex sentences. Aside from this, they were also required to do three book reports which, after reading, a novel, they were to write a character sketch or a brief summary of the subject of their choice. Though many felt that this type of report is effective, others, such as Jeff Fortino and Cevin Fors, Freshmen, disagree. They commented that "oral book reports are much better," and that written ones are "extremely unnecessary!"

Sophomore Steve Ohmstede seems really involved as he silently reads the play "Our Town" in English.

Special Effects

Junior Ann-Marie Daly gives Mrs. Bailey, her English teacher, some of the finished masterpiece while working on her research paper in the library.

Junior Kevin Morrison takes a second look at the girl next door in Mrs. Shellums second period honors English class.

Sophomore Ben Bailey, should you be smiling instead of working on your "Julius Caesar" questions?

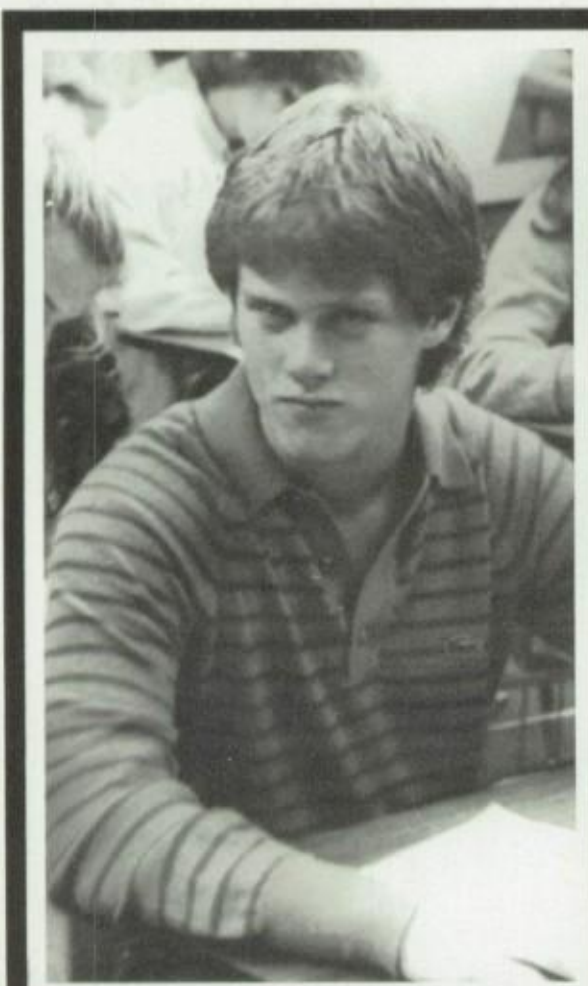

... And More English

Has anyone noticed the new kid in this English class? Mrs. Tynes has a funny way of teaching . . . but sitting in the back of the room is a bit ridiculous.

Hey guys when we said build up your English skills this isn't exactly what we had in mind!

Senior Jeff Dechert has the "You've got to be kidding" look on his face when Mrs. George gives out the vocabulary test.

Junior Sara Turlington finds a little humor in Mrs. Shellum's second period English class.

Who does this lady think I am? Lee Marcus is trying hard to figure out how to answer the next question on one of Mrs. George's grammar tests.

Chemistry of Sciences . . .

Does dissecting earthworms and crawfish sound appealing to you? Or does collecting insects such as grasshoppers and bumblebees and pinning them on styrofoam sound more exciting and interesting? If one "loves to cut up all parts of a frog and then tries to put them back together," as Sophomore Paul Bayliss comments, he wouldn't have any problem taking biology classes.

As a required course for most sophomores, Biology I is an introduction to the study of life which ranges from the studying of the cell structure and its function to the dissecting of certain invertebrates and vertebrates. For those students who are more on the "daring" side, dissecting enormous earthworms can be quite challenging and exciting, but for those who faint at the sight or smell of a preserved specimen, dissecting "can be a horrible experience especially when you're an animal lover," expresses Senior Laura Reid.

In order to have a deeper knowledge concerning the physiological and biochemical makeup of living organisms, a student is encouraged to take Biology II. Through research and laboratory experimentation, Biology II students are able to learn how to stain slides, recognize different forms of bacteria, and observe the mutation of certain fruit flies. Aside from the above, students are also required to dissect more complex organisms. By dissecting these animals, Biology II students are able to learn the different internal parts of a shark as well as those of a piglet.

Aside from the two classes of biology, students also have the option of other science courses such as chemistry and physics. By taking Chemistry I, students are introduced to the broad concepts of modern chemistry. This includes the analyzing of different types of chemical reactions, the understanding of chemical bonding, and also an introduction to inorganic chemistry. To help students understand more about what they are studying, laboratory work is greatly encouraged. As a major part of their grade, Chemistry I students are also required to do a research experiment in which each chooses his own experimental topic and from there designs his own lab to prove his thesis question.

Besides taking chemistry, students who find science essential to their future goals also take physics. In this course, students explore different physical concepts such as gravity, energy, magnetism, light waves, and their relationships in nature. Of course, no science class would be complete without the observing and experimenting of lab work. Usually, teachers will assign labs which relate to each new topic that is being discussed. In this way, "the labs we do would really help us understand the abstract ideas of physics," Junior Ritu Gupta expresses.

But before a student is permitted to take the advanced science courses above, he is required to have an introduction to physical science. Many freshmen who take this course learn the different aspects of energy, temperature, atomic structure, and electricity. The students learn about electricity, they also learn to calculate the velocity of moving objects, along with the current, voltage, and resistance in electrical circuits. Trying hard to tackle these topics, Freshman Alex Guidice finds that physical science "can be cool at times when we study chapters that I am interested in, but it can also be pretty uncool — especially when we have to solve problems that involve 'resistance totals in circuit'." Another freshman, Vicky Vanderwind, comments, "I like physical science a lot. I enjoy working with math problems and formulas, and I think that it will be helpful in the future because I plan on being a doctor." In all, the purpose of physical science is to establish "a good foundation for those who plan to go on in chemistry and physics," states Mrs. Basiewicz, a physical science teacher.

Journalists and . . .

The journalism department is divided into four sections: Journalism I, II, newspaper, yearbook, and photojournalism. In each section, learning to write effectively is a major goal, as is editing and presenting stories.

Journalism I and II classes focus on mastering forms of writing and observing appropriate standards of journalistic proficiency. News, editorial, headline, and feature writing are examples of the types of writing. UIL has a contest in each of these categories, and this year, Mane Event editor, Ellen Williams, won the State Champion Newswriting Award.

Newspaper production is another aspect of journalism. The Mane Event, which was awarded the 1983 Award of Distinguished Merit, comes out monthly. In production of the yearbook, Stampede, the layout design and writing skills learned in the earlier journalism classes finally are put to use.

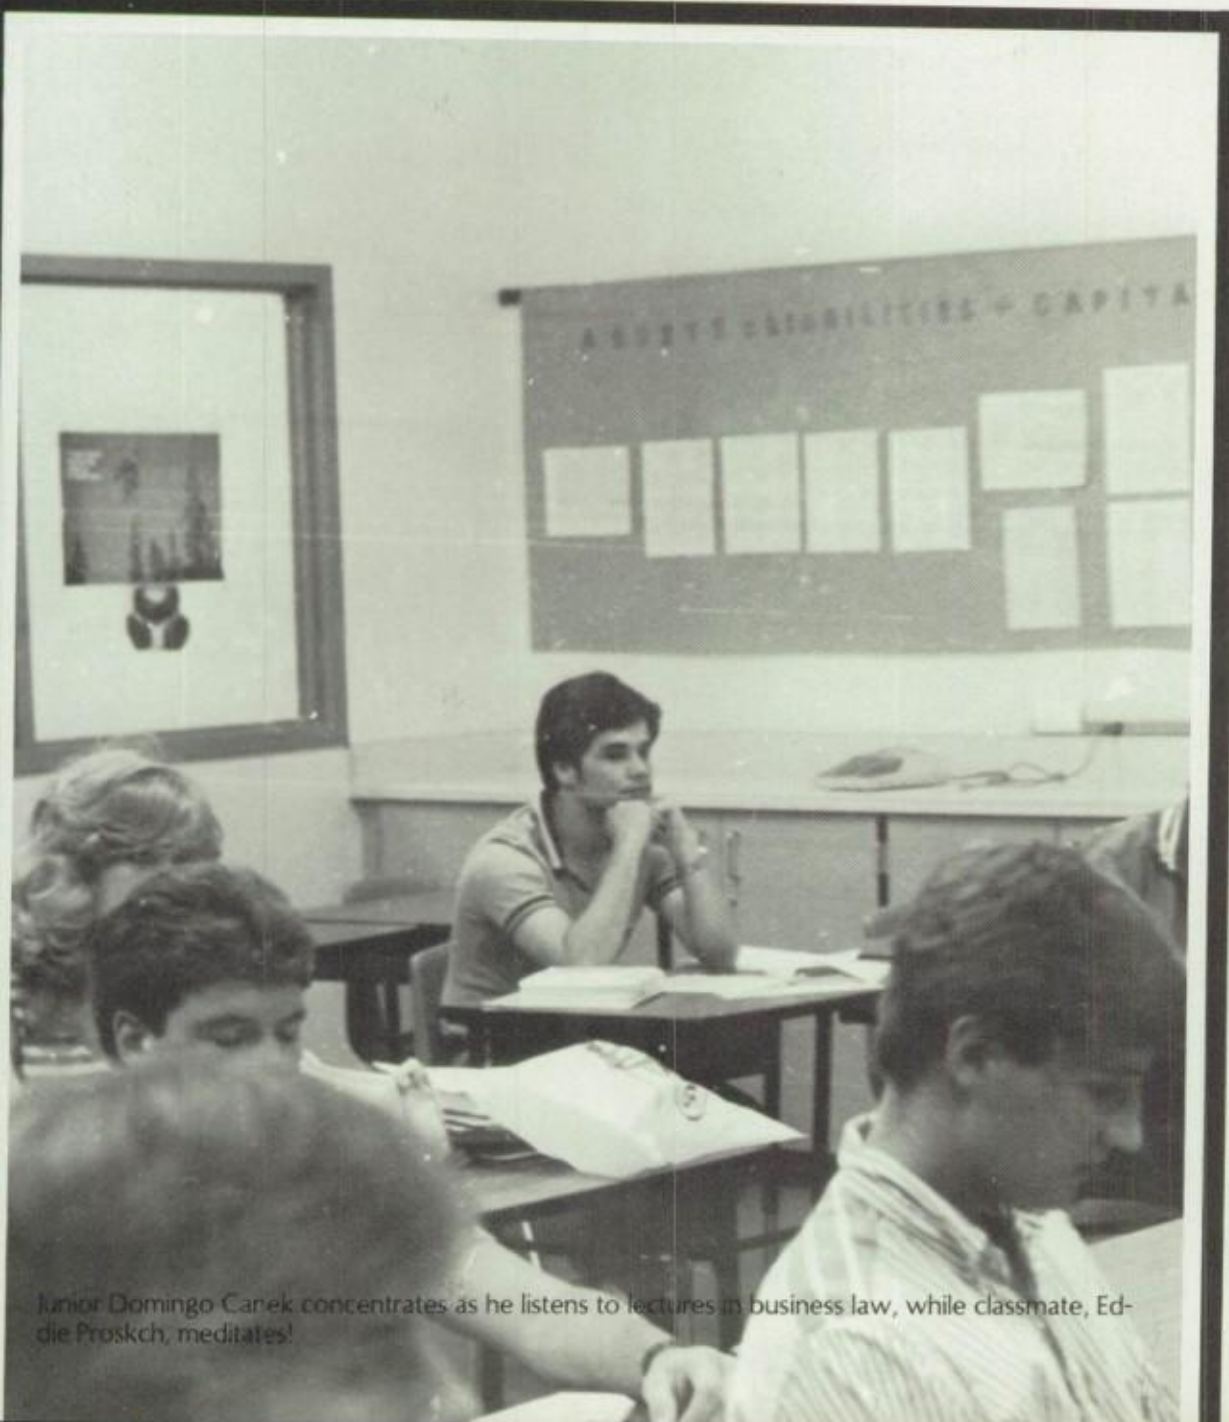

Other electives that students are able to take are business law and accounting. In business law, students learn about the correct handling of the law regarding crimes, courts systems, different types of insurances, as well as those of contracts.

Thus far, business law students have attended a trip to Fort Bend County Courthouse, where they observed and took notes of a murder trial. With this experience, students are able to understand rules of the court room and the methods by which a trial operates. Overall, business law is an elective for those who "wish to go into law or just to have some information of law — especially those that relate to minors," expresses Miss Jenkins, business law teacher.

A course quite similar to business law, accounting, is also offered to students. In this class, many learn the fundamentals of accounting such as procedures for a merchandising business, as well as those for a service business. In addition, topics such as taxes of a business, bank activities are also discussed. Though one might wonder how this course might be helpful to him in his future, one junior, Suzanne Kiefer, knows for sure that accounting will help her "find a job if I need to keep records, and I will benefit from it if I go to college and take another accounting course. By then, I would already know what to expect and it would be much easier the second time around!"

Kathy Hoover, journalism student teacher, explains the process which students need to follow when selling Christmas wrapping paper as a money-making project for press club.

Strengthening Skills

Physical Education classes had a little "Taste of Texas" as they learned to two step in first semester of P.E.

Driver's education was probably one of the most eagerly awaited courses by sophomores and freshmen. Almost every student was hoping to complete the course prior to his birthday.

During the first few weeks of the course, students read about driving safely and did exercises out of the manual distributed by the Department of Public Safety. But perhaps the classroom work was best remembered for some of the grisly films. These graphically accurate films were shown to promote safe and responsible driving. Jennifer Elrod, sophomore, said of the films, "They were gross, but they made you think."

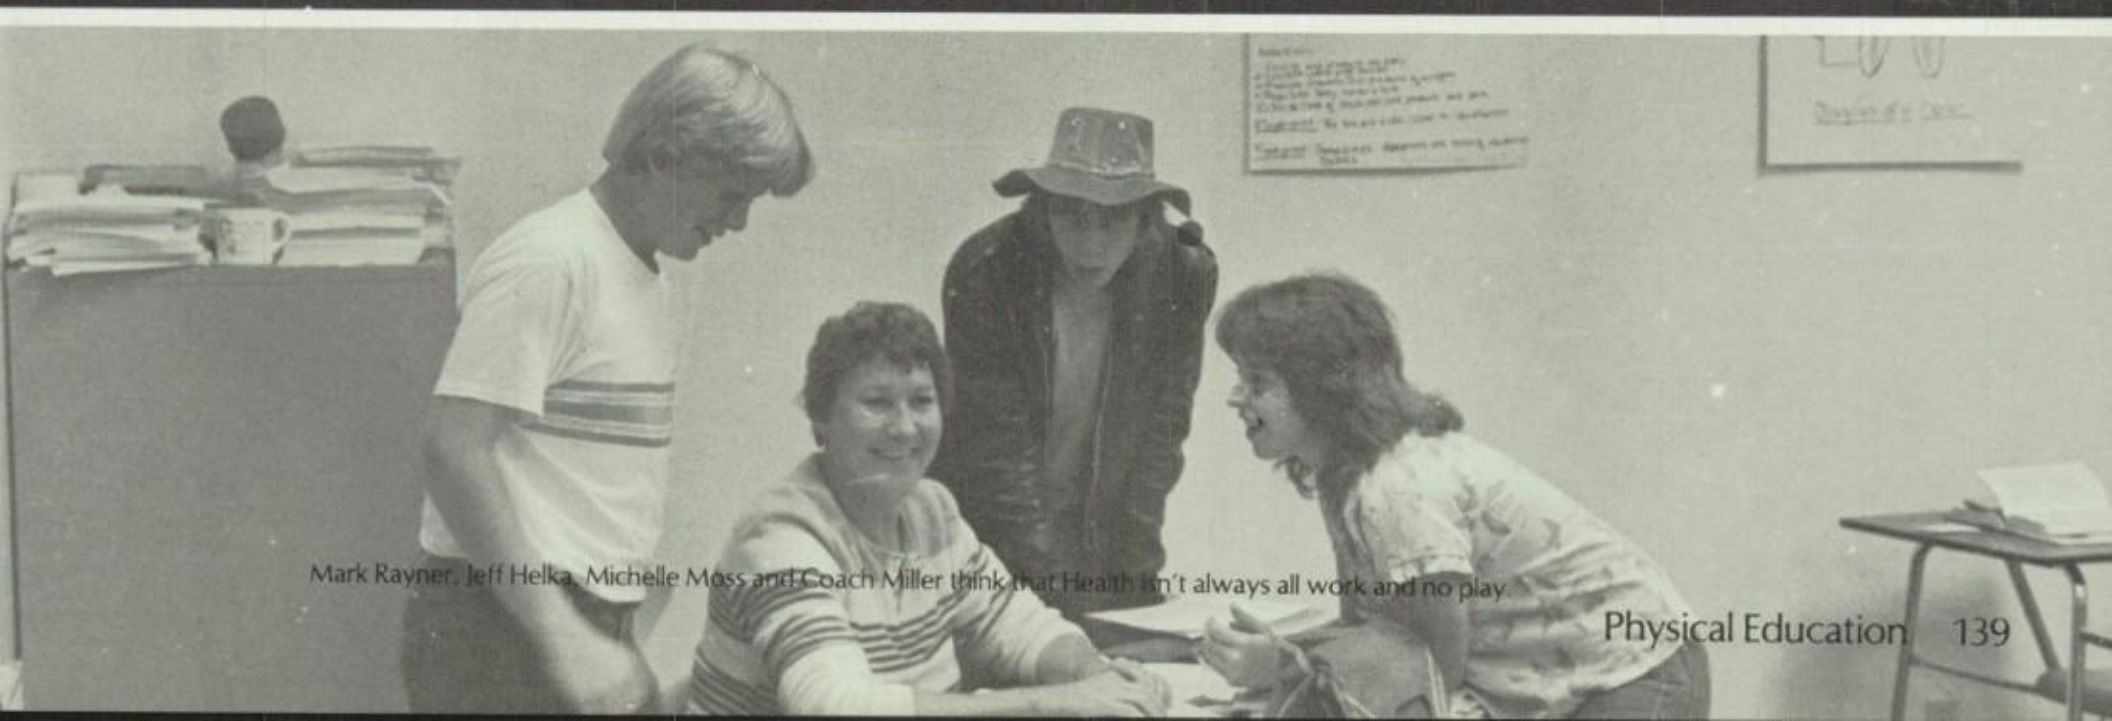

After the DPS came to school to administer a test allowing for a restricted license, students started what was known as the lab part of the class. Each class was divided into groups. These groups alternated simulator driving and actual car driving daily.

Physical education was rarely a popular course among high school students. But the fact was that all students were required to take three semesters of P.E. The course consisted of many different activities such as archery, aerobic dancing, soccer, recreational activities, badminton, and square dancing. All students must have also participated in the dreaded Presidential Physical Fitness test. This test of human endurance and raw courage encompasses the time span of approximately one week. One's running, jumping, and strength were all tested to one's utmost extreme; and if one could make the grade, he earned the coveted patch, a just reward for those who triumphed.

Along with three semesters of P.E., students must have taken one semester of health. Probably the most important part of the health course was the learning of First Aid, especially Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation. Students practiced giving CPR to mannequins. Those who took health also learned about the various body parts and systems, knowledge that is necessary for a healthy and prosperous life. Most students enjoyed health, not necessarily because the subject matter of the course was fascinating, but as a great way to blow off a semester that might otherwise be spent in P.E.

Fine Arts Expressions . . .

In taking an industrial arts class, students are able to have an opportunity to explore and experience a large variety of tools, materials, and processes which associates with industry and technology.

Included in this department are drafting and woodworking. In accordance, drafting is divided into several divisions. General drafting, architectural drafting, and technical drafting are classes that are offered to students who would like to learn about the various areas of sketching, dimensioning, and geometrical construction.

As an overall view, general drafting helps to develop competencies of drawing reproductions, drafting standards and fundamentals, along with pictorial drawings. When one proceeds into a more advanced drafting class, such as architectural or technical drafting, he is introduced to methods and materials which are used in residential design, free-hand rendering, and computer-aided drafting.

Most students who take drafting agree that by learning some of the fundamentals, they are able to draw simple sketches that really express their creativity. To some, taking drafting is just the beginning of their future plans. "I feel that it will help me later on if I pursue a job in an engineering field," expresses Sophomore Steve Sidavis.

The objective of these classes is "to help students develop an understanding of architectural and technical drafting trade. Also it helps them to increase and use their creativity," explains Mr. Kline, drafting teacher. Agreeing with this, Angela Waltman, senior, comments, "I find myself drawing harder and more things that I see instead of just assigned drawings." Thus, by having an understanding of drafting techniques, Mr. Kline feels that if one plans to build a house, it will be helpful if he just knows how "to sketch a plan or review a blueprint."

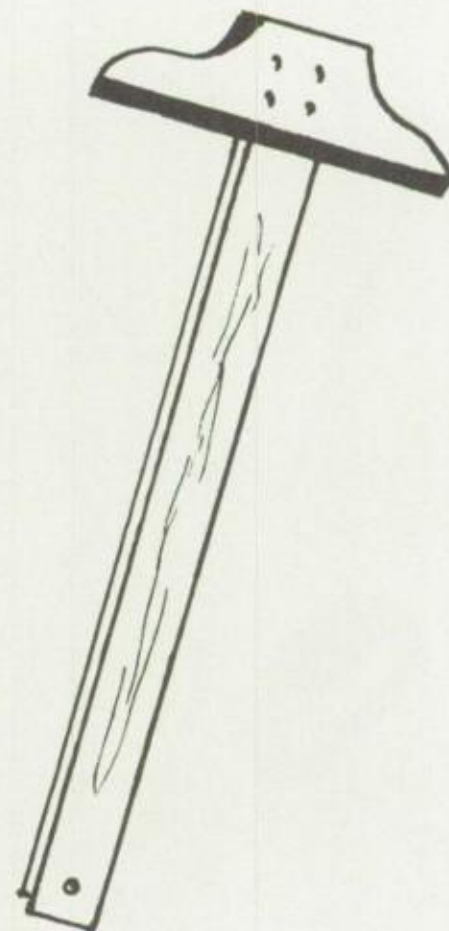

Adding to the industrial arts department is another course, woodworking. Instruction for this class includes the study of industrial processes such as sanding, drilling, and shaping furniture. When selecting such a class as this, students feel they can "always put a knowledge of shop to practical uses in everyday life," comments Junior Mike Davenport. He explains, "For example, it would cost a lot more to have a deck for your backyard done by a contractor than buying the materials yourself and doing it."

According to Mr. Magnuson, woodshop teacher, this course also "helps students by acquainting them with tools and helping them in house repairing as home owners in the future."

Creating Beauty in . . .

Student carefully tries to make a mold of this ring for jewelry class.

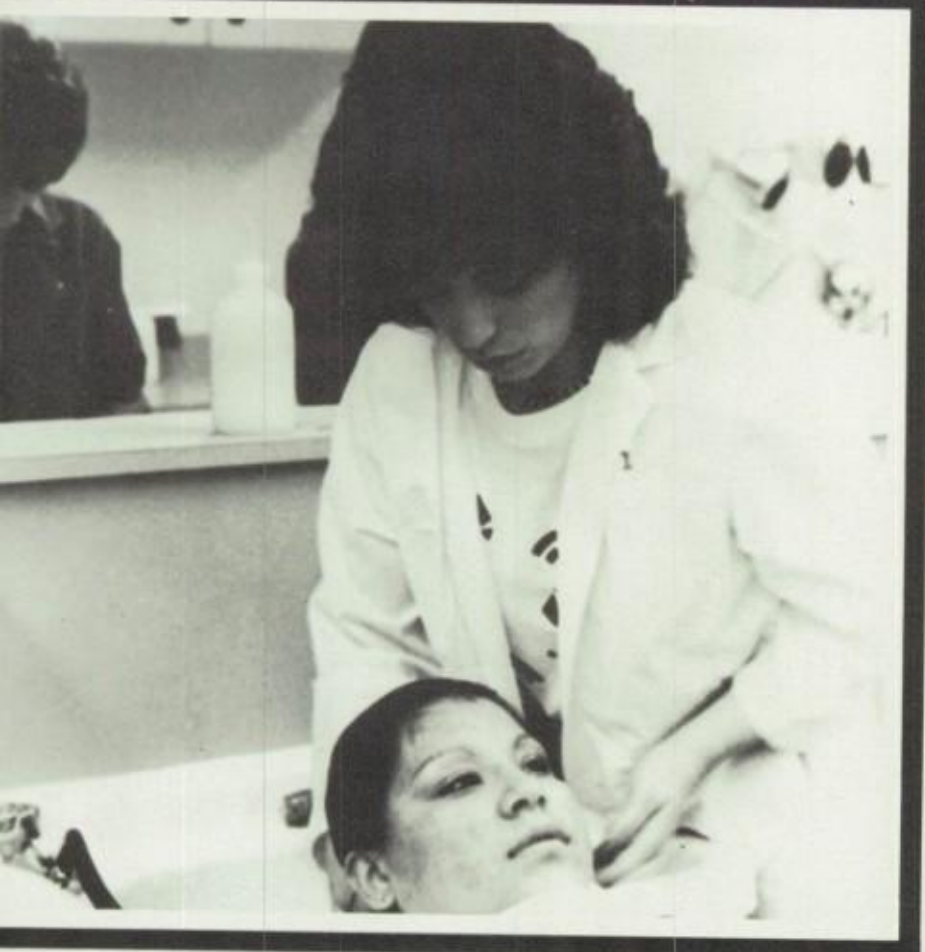

Through the years, more and more elective courses are being offered. A few of the courses are: cosmetology, art, jewelry, home economics, etc. A majority of the students sign up to take cosmetology and art. These classes prepare the students for a future career in the field of their choice.

Cosmetology helps girls prepare themselves to become beauticians. The girls learn how to give facials, permanents, manicures, and do sculptured nails. They are taught how to wash, cut and style a patron's hair. The first year students mostly study the book and do a notebook. Later, they begin to learn how to cut hair. The second year students know all the techniques and cuts that are used. They cut a patron's hair under the supervision of Mrs. Mills. During a year, a number of contests are held and the girls are judged on the originality and style of the cuts. The second year students have taken tests, done notebooks, and have now prepared themselves to take the six hour test, which enables them to receive their beautician license.

Students who like to draw, paint and sketch sign up to take art. There is more to art than just painting and drawing. The students also do weaving, sculptured art, and ceramics. An Art Show is held annually, and is on a voluntary basis only. Students who enjoy art the first year sign up to take Art II and Art III in the preceding years.

Speech: A Different Way of Expressing sophomores Mike Jordan and Karen Jetley practice their debating skills in speech class.

"We don't claim this picture!" expressed freshmen Sara Fighter and Mack Thomas.

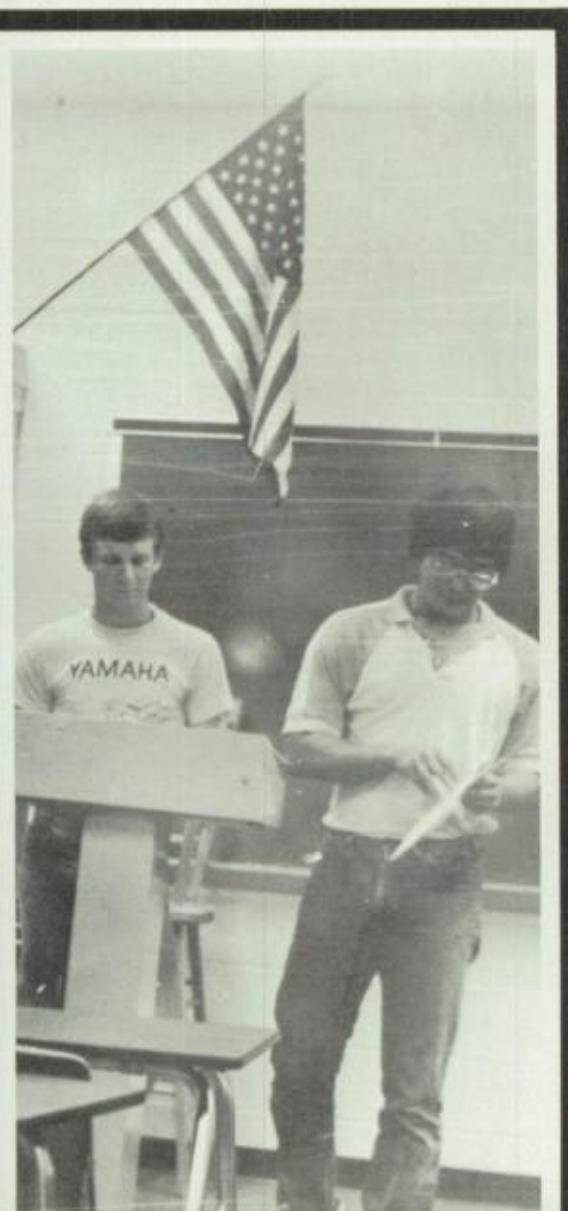

Speech and debate deal with a lot more than just winning awards, as Taylor's department often did. When asked what was learned in these classes, the answers were basically the same. Whether in debate or speech, all students learned how to better their speaking skills.

John Jones, sophomore, expressed this by saying, "I learned how to speak tastefully as all good preps should." Speech and debate both seemed to help everyone with public relations in their later years.

How much dedication must one have had? Well, first of all, there were a lot of long hours. Debate students had many files to organize. While debating they must have been able to back every aspect of their argument.

Speech classes were busy working on the memorization and dramatization of tournament material. All of this hard work certainly paid off for Taylor students. With the guidance of Karen McGlashen, speech and debate teacher, Taylor was able to take away quite a few superior awards.

"... Speech will make you beautiful too!" expresses Mrs. McGlashen, speech and debate teacher.

Social Science

sophomores Michelle Funderburk, Tami Freeman, Bill Carroll, and senior Jesus Alaba, along with Chris Compassi, sophomore, work steadily to finish their "daily jobs" in Mrs. Carpenter's Typing I.

What is Social Science? Social Science consists of notehand, shorthand, sociology, and economics. Students who are taking a variety of the Social Science courses will realize in the near future that the experience gained from these courses is worthwhile.

The notehand, shorthand, and typing classes teach skills to students that will be helpful in future secretarial jobs and to students taking future college courses. Exercises in notehand and shorthand are done daily. Students are given dictation from the teacher or from records. Typing students do warm-up exercises and have typing assignments due daily.

Sociology classes study the different types of human relationships. A few of the units studied this year are personalities, old age, marriage, deviant behavior, and cultures. In class the students have several group discussions over various topics. Mrs. Thorton, sociology and economics teacher, brought many films which pertain to the units studied at that time for the students to watch. By watching these movies, "I learned a lot about people," comments Denise Davis, senior. Some of the movies include Sybil, Ordinary People, and Kramer vs. Kramer.

In economics, "one learns how people create wealth, what it is, how it is produced, distributed, and consumed in a society," explains Mrs. Thorton. A few of the units which the students studied this year are stocks and bonds, banking, taxes, and insurance. Notes are taken in class daily along with several group discussions.

Seniors David Baarlaer, Jackie Harkey, Christie Moleski, David Brewton, and Will Harrell seem to think Economics is a boring class.

Karen Rogers, senior, makes corrections on her notes for shorthand class.

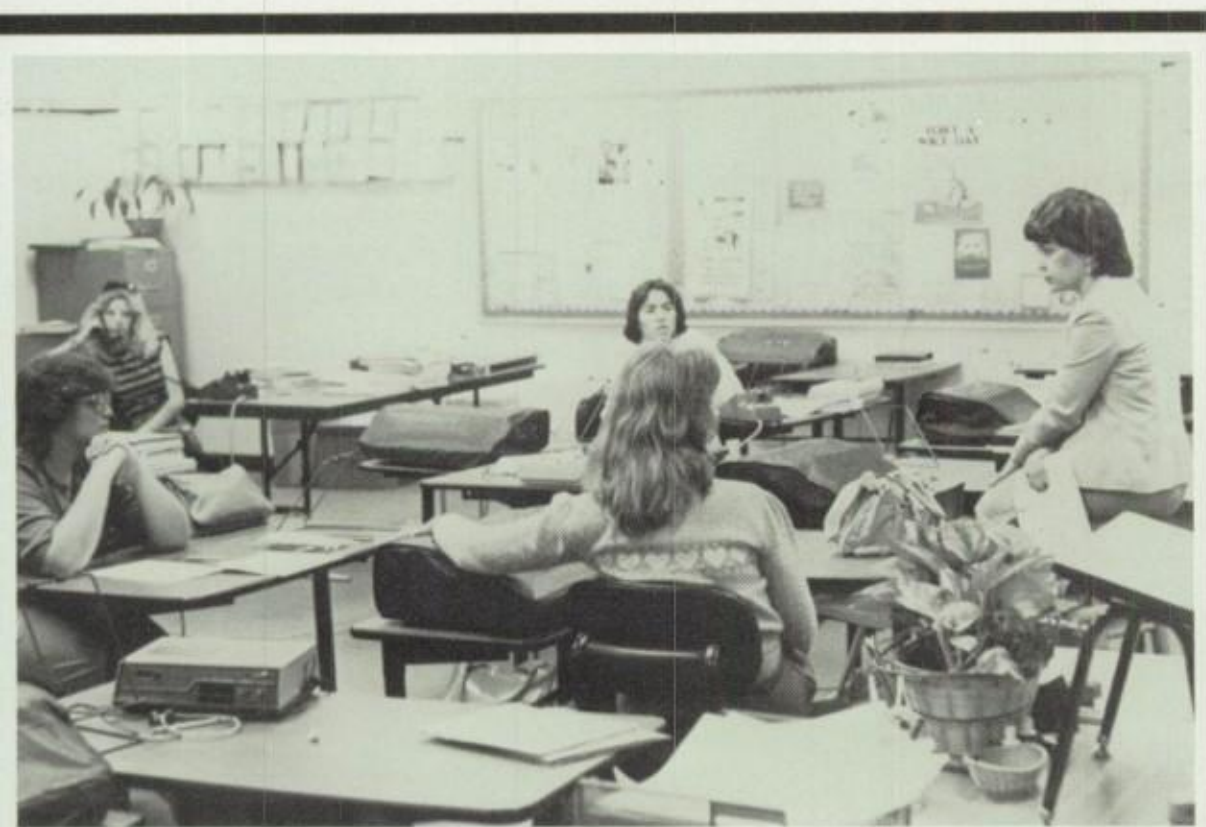

Brian Archer, sophomore, keeps a steady eye and a steady pace in typing, which is important in order to type a perfect paper.

The Working Class Students

Juniors Stacey Colvin, Chris Lessenger, and Jana Willis take advantage of their free time in VOE.

Tom Murphy, senior, and Juniors, Arline Garcia and Jana Willis, review the day's progress with Mrs. Royse, VOE teacher.

Earning credits for school while earning money for themselves is what many juniors and seniors are doing by taking certain co-op courses.

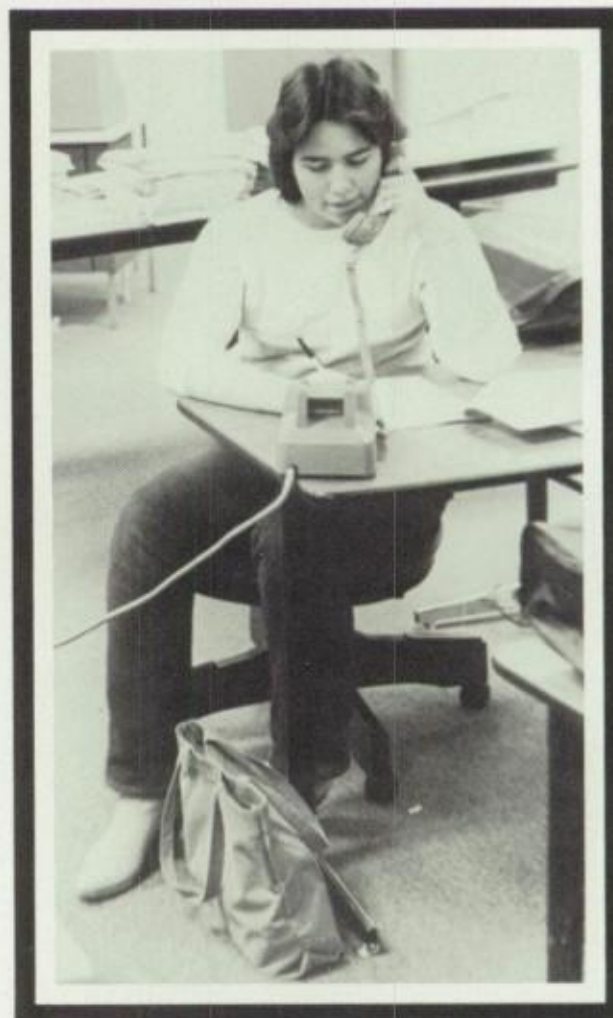

A few of the co-op courses are Industrial Cooperative Training, Home Economics Cooperative Education, Vocational Office Education, and Distributive Education. Students go to school half a day and work the other half of the day. Ever since these programs have begun, more and more students have joined, thus increasing the size of the co-op department.

Students in ICT and HECE learn business techniques and work on skills pertaining to their job in class. Each student in HECE must write a report for his teacher explaining about each day's progress at work. Thus, the grades which the students receive are mainly based on their boss and teacher's evaluations.

Students in VOE type, answer phones, and work on other secretarial skills. "It's very educational and you learn major skills that you will need in office careers," Senior Maria Campbell commented.

Students in DE practice on a cash register, work on displays and sales techniques that students are using on the job.

Speaking With A

Many students enrolled in a foreign language because the particular college they chose to attend required it. Still others did so for the pure enjoyment and learning of the language and culture. Whatever the reason might have been, all students benefited from learning a way of speaking and a way of life different than their own.

Students who took Spanish, French, or German discovered that having taken a foreign language expanded their knowledge of the culture, history, and literature of the country from which the language came.

All of the beginning language classes worked primarily on the basic study of the language. Grammar and literature were also focal points of the course.

The more advanced language classes worked on dialect of the language and concentrated on the conversational aspect of the language.

There were four Spanish I classes and four more advanced Spanish classes. There was also a Spanish Club for students enrolled in Spanish who took a deeper interest in the language.

"French is a pretty language and it's fun to learn," commented Senior Kelly Rackley, enrolled in French IV. There were four beginning French classes in addition to four advanced French classes. A French Club was available for students who took French.

German could also be taken as a foreign language at THS. There were two German I classes and two more advanced classes in German. As in all the other language classes, there was a German Club for all students taking German who were interested.

The students who took German had a unique way to experience their language that the other foreign language students did not. There was the Texas Association of German Students, of which Taylor German students may have belonged. Affiliated with this association was the German Dance Group. The dance group danced at various hospitals, nursing homes, and restaurants. The group tried to dance for the public at least once a month. The dance group danced with the professional dance group "The Rathkamps" at all of their events.

All the classes participated in a Christmas Banquet. Each individual brought a foreign dish from his respected language. The students caroled and performed plays and skits.

Varsity Football Continues Uphill Battle

From 0-10 in '80 to 4-6 in '81, the varsity continued their uphill battle to finish the '82 season 5-5, but their effort wasn't always reflected in the score.

"We were disappointed in the score; but felt we won everywhere but on the scoreboard," said head Coach Lester Reinecker.

According to Reinecker, the most outstanding game of the season was the Katy vs. Taylor 35-3 win. Todd Davis' touchdown reception in this game was a very memorable play. "Katy being a 5A team and a worthy opponent, proved that the Taylor Mustangs are no fluke!" said Senior Mustang Donnie Boltauzer.

The most disappointing loss was considered to be the homecoming game against A&M (7-12) when we fumbled on the 17 yard line marching to victory.

Other memorable plays for the season were: David Barlaer's 44-yard field goal against Friendswood, and Steve Atkinson's touchdown run against Furr in the closing minutes of the game.

Numerous players were mentioned as being valuable: Lance Hindt, tight end; Joe Clinton, full back; David Brewton, tackle; Pat McLemore, center and linebacker; and Donnie Boltauzer, running back.

the Going Got Tough

The Mustangs Continued to Fight

The Taylor Mustangs march onto the field, ready to face another challenging battle.

The Taylor High School Varsity football team finished an extremely successful 1982-1983 season. As Senior Michael Bayliss put it, "It was the best team since the opening of T.H.S." Another player, Richard Bailey, senior, felt that the team could have been even better. The individualistic attitude of the players hindered their performance. Bailey said that next year's team "can be better because the players are a lot closer."

The Varsity Mustangs began grueling practices in early August. They worked out with "2 a days" from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. and again from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. Practice continued through December. After this, strenuous off-season workouts began and many players started in other sports such as track, basketball, or baseball.

The fighting Mustangs gained spirit and confidence after winning their first two scrimmages against Kinkaid and New Caney. Then they continued their victorious reign by beating Katy, Terry, and Friendswood; unfortunately, none of these were district competitions. The Friendswood game was described by Michael Bayliss as, "One of the best games we ever played both offensively and defensively."

However, after all of this glory, the Mustang's victory roll came to a screeching halt at Brenham. "We lost to Brenham because of overconfidence after winning three games in a row," said Bailey. Bayliss added that he felt "Brenham was the worst game. We were beaten easily after winning three in a row, plus we did not win on the road."

The season continued with a rocky win-loss record. The Mustangs experienced an easy victory over Magnolia but a devastating loss to Tomball. Then the win-loss syndrome recurred. The Varsity team struggled for a taste of victory and again in the Furr-Taylor game and achieved it with pride.

They then battled with C. E. King but could not come out ahead. After this, it was all downhill for the still fighting Mustangs. Senior Willie Kirkpatrick described the A&M players as "quick and strong" perhaps, this is why the loss was 6-14. Finally, the season came to a close with probably the toughest game against 4A State Champions Willowridge. Thus ended the Taylor Mustangs Varsity football season of 82-83.

J.V. Football Brings Out the Best

The Junior Varsity football team finished the season on a bitter note losing their last two games to A&M Consolidated and Willowridge. They therefore finished the season with an even record of wins and losses at five. The season started on the promising note of two impressive victories over Katy and Terry. The Mustangs dropped the next game to Friendswood. They came back the next game with a strong 33-8 victory over Brenham in the opening game of district play.

Halfway through the season, the Mustangs were second in district with a 4-1 record. Things went downhill from there and the Mustangs dropped their next two games to Tomball and Furr, thus dropping their record to 4-3. The Junior Varsity team then came back and won their next game against C. E. King. Afterwards, the Mustangs lost those last two games of the season.

There are high expectations next year for the Mustangs who showed outstanding character and promise for the future.

Paving the Way

Under Coach Melvin Cerney, the sophomore football team fought their way through a tough schedule to a disappointing record of three wins, five losses, and a single tie.

The season began with high hopes and two strong and impressive victories over Katy, 21-7, and Spring, 6-0. The sophomores slipped up the next two games and lost to Kingwood, 26-19, and Klein Oak, 12-6. They came back the next week with the most impressive game of the season, a 32-19 victory over Bay City.

"The Bay City game was probably our finest team effort," said Coach Cerney.

A powerful Tomball team stomped on the Mustangs, handing them a 21-12 loss. The Mustangs tied Lamar at twelve the next week with four seconds left on a pass play from Mike Clinard to Robert Szyfranski, before dropping their last two games to Humble, 14-6, and Willowridge, 14-6.

"The Willowridge game was a very frustrating loss," said Coach Cerney. "We needed this game to finish with a .500 record. We were not happy with the final 3-5-1 record. What did please me was the total team effort. These young men played hard all year and were never beaten by a very large margin."

Both Freshman "A" and "B" football teams had a very good season under Coach Ferguson and Coach Searce, finishing with a 7-3 and 6-3 records respectively.

The "A" team got off to a very strong start, scoring victories over Katy, 20-0, Terry, 14-0, Friendswood, 28-0, and Brenham, 32-0. The freshmen slipped up the next game, losing to Magnolia, 6-2. "Magnolia is the only game we really played poorly in," said Coach Ferguson. The "A" team also lost the next game to Tomball, 35-8. They came back with solid victories over Furr, 7-0, C.E. King, 13-0, and A&M Consolidated, 13-8, before losing the last game of the season to a powerful Willowridge team, 41-0.

The "B" freshman team also jumped out of the starting gate fast, winning their first four games against Katy, 28-6, Terry, 2-0, Friendswood, 34-0, and Willowridge, 12-6.

"We beat Willowridge on a 28 yard pass from Todd King to David Ladimir on the last play of the game," said Coach Searce.

The freshmen lost their next two games to powerful freshmen "A" teams, Northwest Academy, 28-0, and St. Thomas, 30-6. The young Mustangs bounced back the next game and trounced Terry, 22-0, before losing the next week to St. Pius' junior varsity team, 32-0. They closed out the last game of the season with a 26-6 victory over Willowridge. These young Mustangs played a tough schedule and showed lots of character and determination on their way to a winning season.

Varsity Keeps Up

A Taylor player keeps the ball alive in a game against Furr as junior Kim Wagenfuehr looks on. The Mustang women went on to win 15-11; 15-11.

The Varsity volleyball team, coached by Janet Koenig, improved their record quite a bit over last year — from 10-14 to 17-7.

When the season began, the girls' high hopes for an improvement over last year were obvious when the girls won their first 6 out of 6 games. They continued this throughout the remainder of the season. At one point during the season, the girls had a seven-game winning streak!

Their third place district finish is an accomplishment and the girls should be proud of their season!

Volleyball Finishes First

We're number one!

That is what the J.V. volleyball girls and Coach Jan Mercer can claim about their extraordinary 1982 fall season in which they finished first in district with a 12-0 district record and a 19-3 record overall.

In fact, they didn't even lose their second game until the fifteenth game of the season. They beat most of the opposing teams easily and deserve a lot of credit.

The Taylor freshman volleyball team, coached by Cynthia Swetnam, is a team that should not be overlooked. Despite their 10-12 record overall, they finished in 3rd place with a district record of 8-4.

The girls lost many of their games that could have gone either way; unfortunately, they went the wrong way.

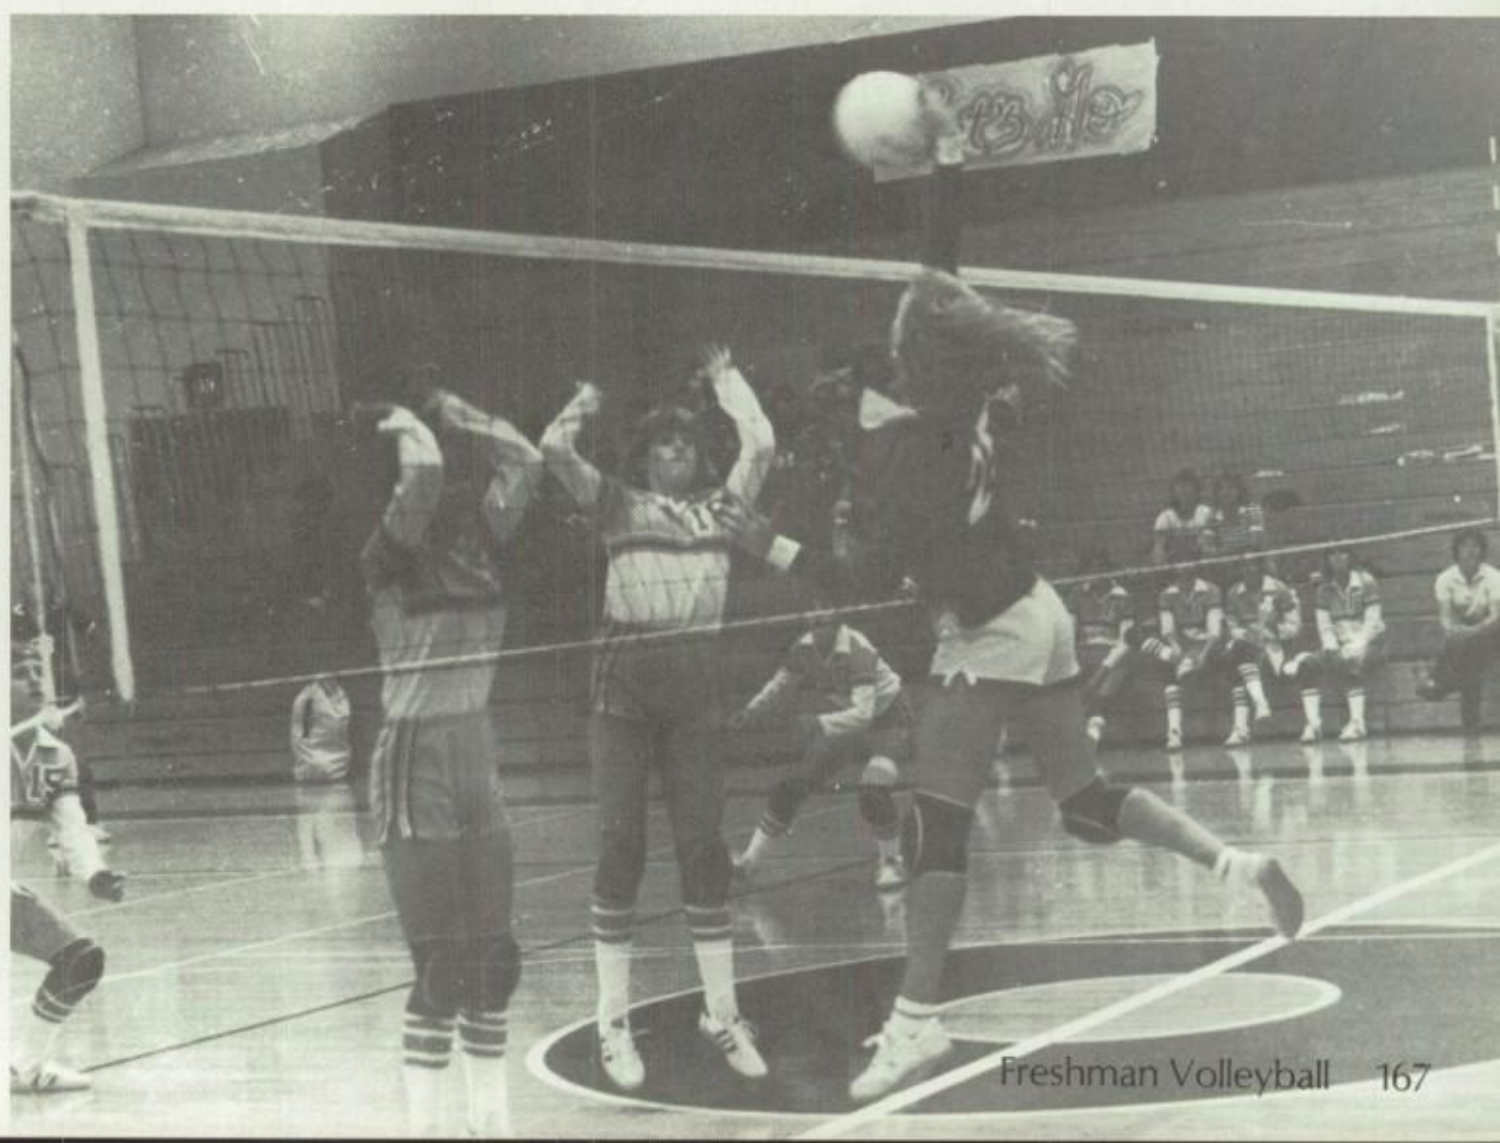

So the girls should be proud of their effort and, looking ahead, their potential. By Theresa Brewer and Jim Simon

Teamwork Was the Center David Richardson, junior, goes up for a jump ball in an early season victory against Kincaid.

A young, experienced Mustang team with only two returning lettermen sent shivers up the spines of a few veteran teams in District 11-4A as the "upstarts" from Taylor narrowly missed their first playoff berth under new head coach Mike Payne.

Coach Payne guided the Mustangs to their first winning season with an 8-6 district record and a 16-12 overall record compared to last season's 4-10 district and 11-17 overall records.

"It was difficult with only two returning varsity players, but I had most of the players in J.V. and I knew what they could do," said Payne.

"It was hard to adapt," commented forward-guard Bill Matthews, senior. "Both coaches respected the players differently, and had a different emphasis on different things."

But adapt the Mustangs did. Although the Mustangs through their first few games lost a few close ones in the closing minutes, they did manage to hold on to beat Katy, Kincaid, Santa Fe, Washington, and Northbrook.

The Mustangs lost their district opener to a strong A&M Consolidated team, 61-57, but came back and beat Tomball, Willowridge, Brenham, and C.E. King. The Mustangs built up a 4-2 record before facing what was possibly the toughest game of the season; on the road against Furr. The game was close all the way through, but the Mustangs came up empty, 65-63. A tough, disappointing loss, leaving the Mustangs 4-3 through the first half of district play.

The next game, at A&M Consolidated, the fourth ranked 4A team in state, was also on the road. The Mustangs came away with a 69-68 last second victory and new hope.

Tomball, Willowridge, and Magnolia all fell before the galloping Mustangs. The playoffs were only three games away. Their hopes were crushed by Brenham in a close, tough game as the Cubs emerged on top, 51-50.

Things went downhill from there. C.E. King rolled past the Mustangs 64-52, and Furr stomped the Mustangs, 79-58. No playoffs for the Mustangs for this season, but nobody believed the young, inexperienced team would be a contender.

The Mustangs came up empty this year playoff-wise, but achieved a winning record and experience. The Mustangs would be a team to watch in the future.

Bouncing Back

The season started the way it ended for the junior varsity girls, with losses. The girls had a disappointing 1-11 district record and 2-22 overall record.

The girls started the season with four straight losses to Spring Branch, Royal, Friendswood, and Santa Fe. The girls then demolished Mt. Carmel, 27-4, for their first victory of the season. The girls hoped to pull themselves out of their slump, but their hopes were dashed as Galveston Ball rolled past the Mustangs, 55-25. Things didn't get any better, and the Mustangs lost ten consecutive games.

The girls pulled themselves together and held on for a 30-23 victory over Willowridge, the only district win of the season for the ladies. It didn't get any brighter and the remainder of the season was all downhill as the ladies lost their last seven games.

"On this team, we do not have an abundance of ability," said Coach Wynn. "They have learned to be most gracious losers and humble winners."

The freshmen, coached by Jan Mercer, rolled up the best record of the girls' basketball team, finishing with a 7-5 district record and a 10-13 overall record.

"The girls worked very well together and are very quick," commented Coach Mercer. "Their only weakness all season was their outside shooting. They sometimes lost confidence in their shots."

Through their first ten games, the young ladies were erratic, building a 4-6 record, including close losses to Santa Fe, 28-26, West Columbia, 33-29, and Wharton, 26-22.

Then the girls entered district play and won five consecutive games, beating Tomball, Willowridge, Magnolia, Brenham, and C. E. King.

The girls then hit a slump, losing twice to A&M Consolidated and once to Tomball. "We shouldn't have lost to Tomball, but our shooting was really 'cold'," Mercer said.

Things went downhill from there as the young ladies' slump continued and they lost close games to Magnolia, 31-29, and Brenham, 21-20.

Sophomores

A strong start and a weak finish has been a trend for Taylor teams this year and the sophomore boys' basketball team was no exception.

The sophomores were 5-2 through the first half of district play and 8-8 overall, losing in district only to Dulles Red and Willowridge. Through the second half of district play, the Mustangs were 2-5 with victories over Calhoun and Dulles White and losing close games to Dulles Red, Brazoswood, and Alvin.

"The sophomore boys have progressed very well this year," said Coach Ricky Searce. "I am very pleased with the team's performance. This team has good hustle, attitude, and the will to win."

That aptly describes the freshman boys' basketball team this season as the young men compiled a 6-6 district record and a 10-11 record overall.

"We have had several good games and some we let get away," said Coach Mike Ferguson. "We will finish third or fourth in district, but on given days, we have had the potential to beat anyone."

The Mustangs showed their potential with strong district victories over Magnolia twice, C. E. King, and Brenham. However, they dropped decisive games by a large margin to Willowridge twice, Brenham, and A&M Consolidated. "Win and loss doesn't bother me too much at this level of competition," said Coach Ferguson. "We have been playing for experience at the ninth grade level instead of concentrating on win-loss record only. I do think we had a good effort the largest percentage of the time."

Girls Cross Country Show Their Stuff

Lynn Beck, sophomore, passes up a runner on her way to the finish during a meet at Lamar Consolidated.

Girl's Varsity Cross Country team, under the guidance of Coach Diane Howell, finished their season on a bitter note. They finished third in the district meet at A&M Consolidated. A first or second place finish would have advanced the girls to regionals, but due to injuries to top runners, the girls had to settle for a third place finish.

"We had a lot of new faces on varsity this year," said Coach Howell. "But the girls have always been enthusiastic and demonstrated lots of team spirit."

The girls got off to a weak start, placing twelfth at Pasadena and seventh at Lamar Consolidated, but came on strong towards the end of the season by placing third at Bay City, second at St. John's, and eventually placing third in district.

Girl's Junior Varsity Cross Country finished their season on a high note by capturing first place in district at A&M Consolidated. Led by Coach Diane Howell, the J.V. girls participated in only four meets all season including the district meet. Nowadays, many students feel incomplete with their vital assets. Strong conflicts always seem to arise — the most vital assets also translate into the most successful. This is where the competition to be number one begins.

Practice, endurance, and true determination are among the assets shared by both the Mustang Men's and Lady's water polo teams. However, the 1982-83 season came up short for both teams and left them frustrated champions — both placing second in district, with the men advancing to second at regionals and sixth in state.

"Both teams did better than expected. I was very pleased and proud of them," commented Coach Youngblood.

The season started off on a winning note for the Mustang Men. As they squeezed past Cy-Creek by one, their winning margin increased by 17 over Galena Park.

Just as a spark of a winning streak seemed to begin, along came North Shore. When the final whistle blew after a hard-fought battle, North Shore emerged victorious at 15-11. This was the first one of three straight losses to North Shore that would cost the team the district and regional title. According to Sophomore Mike Jordan, "They had a tremendous goalie and a couple of very good shooters.

They also had a very unusual strategy."

Despite the mid-season loss, the team reaped the remaining two victories of the season, defeating cross-town rival Katy, and Kingwood. The team's season ended just as it had begun — victorious.

Teamwork and cold weather continued throughout regional finals, which the Mustangs attended through a new UIL ruling which allowed the top two teams of each district to compete. The championship of Region 9 seemed just within grasp until North Shore and Taylor squared off again, with the same disappointing results.

The varsity team's enthusiasm enabled them to capture an early round victory over Killeen. However, their spirit was soon dampened after successive losses to San Antonio Clark, North Shore, and Baytown. Now the season was finally over. As in baseball, three strikes and you're out. A bittersweet ending, while they advanced further than ever before, the seniors have yet to capture a title.

The Lady Mustangs put out a valiant effort to place second in district. Ironically enough, the team also suffered a mid-season loss to North Shore. The Ladies sailed past Cy-Creek and settled the Taylor-Katy rivalry quickly and painlessly, embarrassing the Tigers with a 20-4 victory.

However, teamwork wasn't enough to carry the Mustangs over in Regionals. They were defeated four times and came home with a debt to settle next season.

Meanwhile, Taylor High School is still pondering over the meaning of water polo members' "Polo for Peace" jerseys.

Boys' Varsity Shows Strength

While the 6th place finish of the Boys Varsity track team is poor, the team still had its strengths. "Overall, considering the lack of experience, we progressed very well throughout the season," said field events coach Don Chandler.

"Our distance runners scored points in all our meets," said Coach Chandler. Field events also did relatively well considering their lack of members participating, led by senior Lance Hindt. "Lance was the high point man on the team," said coach Chandler. Hindt also advanced from the district meet by finishing first in shot-put, along with Mike Clinard, sophomore, who placed second in the 800 meters.

Another bright spot was the 1600 meter relay, who ran an incredible, record setting 3:27, composed of 3 sophomores and 1 freshman. The Varsity also managed to set 10 other school records.

This year's boys Varsity track team faired relatively well, despite their 6th place finish in district, and Taylor can rest assured that they will continue to improve in the upcoming years.

Girls' Track Team Sets Record

The 1983 Girls Varsity and J.V. track team's 5th place finish is not an accurate indicator of the potential of this young team. Out of the 55 girls on the team, 45 of them are freshmen. "They were young and inexperienced, but they really improved their times and distances in every meet," said Girls Track coach, Diane Howell.

"The girls are really enthusiastic and they all have lots of team spirits," comments Coach Howell. "One of our strengths is that we have a lot of depth in all events," she added.

The Varsity girls were led by sophomores Michelle Barlow, Kim Tourneur, and Freshman Kim Gearhart. Michelle was a regional qualifier in the high jump; Kim Tourneur placed in all meets, and Kim Gearhart set a school record in the 400 meter.

"The J.V. was headed by Marti Urand and Maureen Jeffrey," said Coach Howell. Urand was the district champ in the triple jump and Jeffrey also finished first in district in the 200 meters.

Potential is now a key factor in figuring into the girls' track future and it seems that the girls returning next year will be on an improving team!

J.V. Boys Excel!

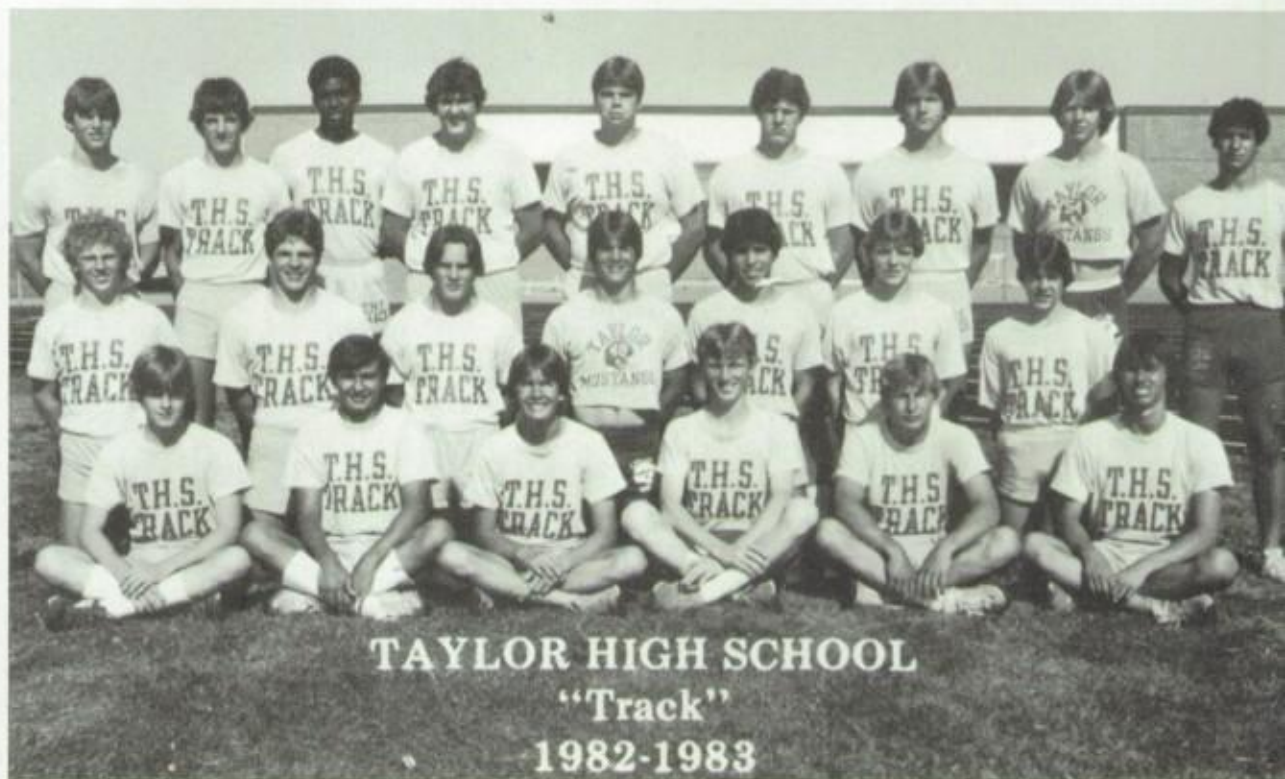

"The strength of this year's J.V. track team was our outstanding distance runners," said J.V. Boys track coach Don Chandler. That can be proven correct by looking at the times of the distance runners in the 800, 1600, and the 3200 meters.

Though the J.V. only ended up with a 4th place finish in district, Coach Chandler points out that the J.V. boys did well considering that the team had only 12 members. "We were pleased with the progress and district performance of the team," said Coach Chandler.

While the whole team did an excellent job by setting a number of school records, Wendell Jolley, Pete Lara, and Joe Garcia did exceptionally well in placing high in every district meet.

With 8 sophomores on this year's team, the Mustangs can be expected to perform even better in the upcoming years.

1982-83, Swimming to . . .

The Mustang Boys' swim team accomplished many of the goals at the beginning of the season. With ten wins and no losses, Taylor set new records in every event. Most individuals reached their personal best times and the 200 medley relay and 400 freestyle relay teams achieved superior times.

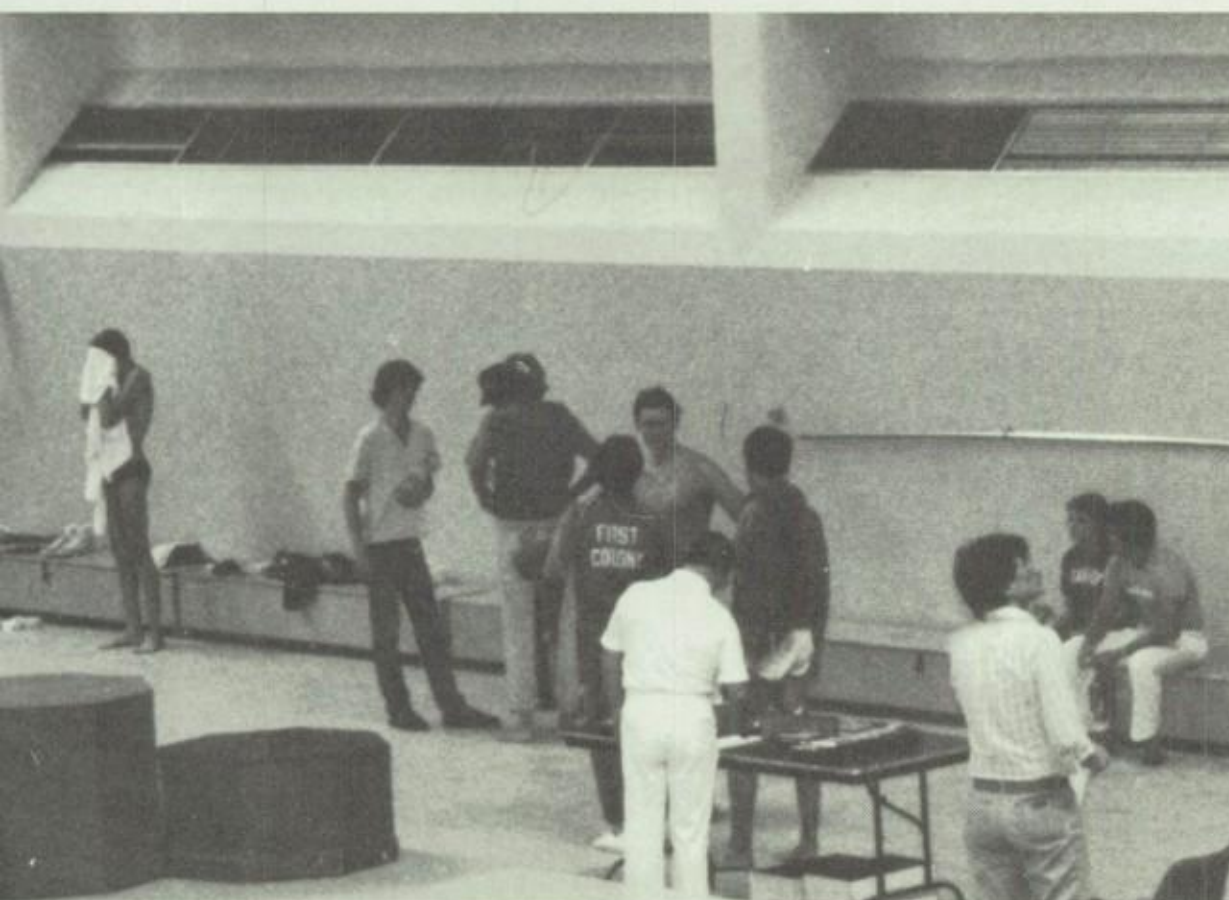

The boys worked very hard and it paid off for them. The high point of the season came when the 400 freestyle relay team members placed second at the state championships and qualified for All-American and All-State honors. It was a thrill for all Mustang swimmers to receive the state medals on the award stand in Austin.

Although the girls' team did not finish in the top four teams at district, their progress was very pleasing. The team is young (losing only three of last year's seniors) and their future looks bright. The girls swam against very tough opponents and had a winning record. Many girls swam lifetime best times and achieved goals set at the beginning of the season. The season was a success.

Carl Edmiston, sophomore, concentrates in preparation for doing a double back flip.

When one thinks of diving, the picture that comes to mind is jumping off of high boards and moving around in strange ways until hitting water. A little bit more goes into diving.

To be on the THS diving team, one must learn five required and six optional dives. Then, after mastering these, the diver must compete in dual meets which consist of 2-3 teams and invitionals consisting of 6 or more teams.

In these feats of grueling competition, Carl Edmiston, sophomore, and Briana Parker, freshman, placed as finalists in district, and Geraline Smitherman, freshman, and Christie Worley, sophomore, went on to compete in regionals. Finally, at the closing of the season in the THS invitational, Taylor divers came in with third place.

Soccer Kicks Off

Taylor widened its sports spectrum this year by introducing a new sport — soccer. Guys' and girls' soccer began its first year under Coach Cynthia Swetnam, a former player of six years in London. "I love the sport," said Coach Swetnam. "It's fun to play, thrilling to watch, and great to coach."

Guys' soccer wound up with a 4-12-1 record over and 2-5-1 in zone. "There have been a lot of things to learn," said Swetnam. "We have been relatively good. Darin Alley made vast improvements on offense."

Alley, a senior, led the team in scoring with thirteen goals and made First Team All-District Forward. He felt that the will to play soccer is what kept the team going. "Everyone wants to win; even when it doesn't look good, we just keep trying," said Alley. The offense was also led by Junior Danny Summers, who often kept the ball up to the forwards.

But it was the defense that kept the games close all season long. Led by seniors Scott Peake and Paul Davies, as well as sophomore goalkeeper Jon Tarpey, the Mustangs' defense only allowed an average of just 1.7 goals per game in the final eight zone games. "These three guys (Peake, Davies, and Tarpey) had set up one of the strongest defenses in our district," said Coach Swetnam. Although the defense was plagued with injuries all year long, they still managed to stay together. "Our bench helped the starters out, especially in critical moments," said Davies.

The Mustang men started off slowly, losing their first four out of five games before going into district zone to Spring Wood, 3-6, Memorial, 2-3, Alief Hastings, 0-5, and Katy, 2-3, in a very controversial game.

But the Mustangs began getting on track in zone play, keeping the games close most of the way and, though losing to Stratford, 0-4, most of the games were decided in the final minutes of the game. "We lost a lot of games that could have gone either way," said Coach Swetnam. "Basically, I feel that as a first year team competing in a tough 5A District we have fared well and, of course, the future will be better each year."

It's First Season

Taylor also introduced girls' soccer this year and it is bringing "soccer fever" into Taylor. "It's catching on," said Junior Shelley Thies. "Every game we keep improving and more and more people are coming out to see us."

The girls were led by a number of excellent players. On offense, seniors Kim Newton and Kathy Freuh both led the team in scoring with five goals each. The offense was also led by Kim Wagenfuehr, junior, who led the team with assists. The midfield was the strongest point of the ladies' team. Headed by Shelley Thies and Sophomore Michelle Barlow, they formed a powerful midfield game. "Both players (Barlow and Thies) are especially effective midfielders," said Coach Swetnam.

On defense, Sophomore Krista Freuh directed the defense with Freshman Goalkeeper Julie Hillenburg. "Krista often stopped the opposition on fast breaks," said Coach Swetnam. "Julie has been a very good goalie . . . an excellent player."

The girls, like the guys, started off poorly. Then, after losing their first five to Jersey Village, Cypress Creek, Spring Woods, Memorial, and Northbrook, they won their first game by outplaying Alief Hastings 2-1. Kim Newton, high scorer, had this to say about the important win, "We were in a 'must win' situation . . . we really needed it before going into zone."

Zone play began well for the Lady Mustangs and after two weeks they had compiled a 1-2-1 record in zone, in third place, and within striking distance of the first place team, Westchester. "The games had been close and all we needed is that edge early to win," said Coach Swetnam.

But then the girls dropped out of the race by losing their following two games to Westchester and Elsik. However, the ladies ended the season on a good note by beating Stratford, 2-1, and holding a strong Spring Branch team to a scoreless tie.

When the season ended, the girls wound up with a 3-10-2 record overall and 2-4-2 in zone. Keeping in mind that the girls were in a tough district, the team played well and stayed together. "Love, dedication, and DX held us together," said Junior Julie Wenstrom.

Golfers Up to

The boys and girls golf teams both had an outstanding year as they both placed 2nd in the district tournament and advanced to Regionals. The boys had four players named to the all-district team and the girls had one.

"The seniors were strong for the boys, and the freshmen and upperclassmen coming back will be very good," said Coach Miller. "The girls played well for their amount of experience. They were all freshmen and sophomores and should be better next year."

All-district selections included senior Terry Carter and sophomore Kelly Homier both named to the 1st team. The future of the golf team certainly appears bright.

Varsity Tennis Bounces

Awesome, unstoppable, superb, remarkable, incredible, grand, or any other word in the Webster's Dictionary cannot accurately describe the Varsity tennis team's performance this year. "The team has progressed to the point where I thought and wished we could be," said varsity tennis Coach Charlie Scott. "I was very pleased with their performance."

He should be! The team compiled a 15-4-1 record in dual matches at the year's end. In the seven tournaments the team played, they finished fourth once, second twice, and first an incredible four times. "We have a good, solid, young team. The boys finished first in district and so did the girls," said Coach Scott. "Everyone went to regionals — boys and girls."

Teresa Kuykendahl, sophomore, with all her might returning the ball to her opponent.

Freshman Doug Roberts grunts as he volleys the ball over the net during an intense match against a Tomball opponent, which he won.

John Kuykendahl, Doug Roberts, Jamie Bond, Catherine Whitty, and Dee Ryan all qualified for the state tournament; with Kuykendahl finishing third. However, Coach Scott adds that the entire team is outstanding. Everyone placed either first, second or third. They work hard and hate to lose," said Coach Scott. "They spend many hours in trying to accomplish a common goal — to be an excellent tennis player." You know what? They're doing it. By Jim Simon

Following in Their Footsteps

With power in her swing, sophomore Cheryl Hurta smacks the ball hard while warming up for her doubles match.

Striving for excellence, freshman Sam Majed reaches for the ball while practicing for a match.

One might think that the Taylor Junior Varsity tennis team would be in the shadow of the Varsity team. This is not so. The J.V. is making their own success. "The team has done well all year," said Coach Charlie Scott. "They are young, good competitors with good attitudes."

The J.V. team consists of 5 Juniors, 9 Sophomores, and 8 Freshmen. "They (girls and boys) finished second in district behind A&M Consolidated," said Coach Scott. The highest point of the season, though, was winning second place at the Freindswood Varsity tournament, "B" division. To name an outstanding play, though, Coach Scott points out, would be impossible. "There are many individuals — too many to mention by name. They all contributed to the success of the J.V. and Varsity teams."

The J.V. team is definitely making themselves heard in district and are also adding more future talent to the Taylor tennis team.

Alexandra Martin, sophomore, waits expectantly for the ball to be returned in a match against A & M.

Swinging Hard . . .

Sophomore Benji Palacios starts his swing during a game against C. E. King. "It was a 2-strike pitch and I just got enough of it to single into right field," he recalls.

Looking at the defensive alignment of the Mustangs, the coach determines the performance of the team.

Coach Melvin Cerny summed up the Varsity baseball team's performance this year very well. "We did not have the year we expected," said Coach Cerny. But he adds, "There were several games we could have won but due to the lack of hitting, we came up short."

They ended up with a dismal 5-19 record overall and a 2-12 record in district. "The team was plagued by spotty defense and a lack of run support," said Coach Cerny.

There were a few positive points in the season, though, as Coach Cerny points out that one of these was pitching. "David Brewton's earned run average was 2.73 while Mike Connolly finished up with a 2.94 ERA — both of these young men did a good job," said Coach Cerny.

But the highest point of the season was an 11-9 win over Katy. The come-from-behind win was highlighted by the team's leading RBI man, John Butler, who smacked a grand slam in the bottom of the 7th inning to give the Mustangs the win.

So even with the poor record at season's end, the Varsity baseball team was not without its strong points and we all can expect to see an improving record in the near future.

Junior Varsity on the Move

First baseman Scott Rost, sophomore waits for the ball to come to him in order to put the approaching runner out in a game against A&M Consolidated.

In just their fourth year of existence, the J.V. Baseball team finished first in district. "The J.V. team improved each game," said Coach Mike Ferguson. "The kids worked hard and had a lot of fun."

The J.V. finished with a 10-6 record overall and a 5-2 record in district. While their record doesn't show it, the J.V. team played very well all season long. "I think we could beat any team we played but on given days things don't always work just right," said Coach Ferguson.

The J.V. played a mediocre non-district standing at a record of 5-4. But then the Mustangs won the next four out of five games; one of which was a 12-7 win over a powerful Tomball team. "Beating Tomball was one of the high points of the season," said Coach Ferguson. They lost the next game to A&M Consolidated, 3-5, but they ended the season on a good note by getting past Willowridge 12-11.

But again, winning district was the highest point of the season, and the Mustangs J.V. Baseball team looks to be a strong force in the future.

Editor's Note & Acknowledgements

June 15 has arrived and the fourth edition of the Stampede is finished. Now, all that is left are memories.

As editor of this book, I think every staff member learned something about human relations this year, especially me. Dealing with personal differences required a great deal of tact and sometimes an equal amount of yelling and temper tantrums. But, somehow, irate staffers were able to produce quality pages quickly, see ya'll, temper tantrums were just a way of making you work and not a personal vengeance!

The staff and I would like to express our deep appreciation and thanks to the following for having a limitless amount of patience and help throughout the year:

Pat Lowry, our sponsor, for being one who was always willing to take the initiative in setting forth and experimenting with the deep, dark, unexplored boundaries of yearbook production.

duction.

Peggy Schneider for being there when we needed her — similar to a security blanket. She had all the answers.

Mr. McMeans for his help and concern in producing the best possible book.

Dr. Mendez for letting us in the yearbook room after school let out.

All the English teachers for allowing us to interrupt classes due to the scheduling of the individual photographs.

All the teachers who tolerated loud yearbook students roaming the halls "gathering quotes for copy." Also a thanks goes to all teachers for allowing us to take up your time for candid in class photos.

Carew Photography for providing photographs.

American Heritage for individual pictures.

Kay Photography for providing photographs.

Rutledge Photography for providing photographs.

Mark David, our yearbook counselor, for listening to us whine about "needless" deadlines and most of all helping us fix our major "boo-boo's."

Mike Laufer for helping with the photography situation.

My personal thanks goes to every staff member, photographer, and otherwise who contributed to the finished product. You all did a super job. A very special thanks goes to the staff members who stayed until the very last page was in the mail.

The staff has a great deal of memories for the years to come and, with luck, Volume 4 of the Stampede will enhance the memories of the student body as we move toward boundaries which are . . . limitless . . .

Editor-in-Chief

Cheryl, we don't see each other that much any more between my job & Jason + Russell. I'm glad you & Jason got back to school. I wish we had a class together. At least we have 2 of the same teachers since kindergarten. Good luck. Love always, J. Riordan

Cheryl, N. Jason

Nina Riordan

Cheryl,
Well it was fun
in Bio last year, but it should be twice as much fun in English and history. Lin break-up w/ Jason was short your friend always,
Jeff

Cheryl, "Hyper, Hyper"

Hope this year is as fun as Physical Science (Ha! Ha!) But seriously, may you have an excellent year.

Love,

Ron Van

Cheryl,
 Dad Jim really enjoyed dancing other we got to also very happy you and I'll look so cute together! I'm glad we've gotten to talk and I hope we'll talk a lot more in the future! Well talk
 "86" the best!
 Love ya
 Kirsten
 Cheryl
 Jason

Cheryl,
 Well next year is it.
 I am glad I know you,
 you are the sweetest girl
 I know. Stay ~~the~~ sweet and you will go a long way.
 Love Russ
 "85" Pless

Cheryl,
 Well, another year has gone by & now we're JUNIORS!
 I'm really glad that we have been friends. You are a really sweet girl. I know you'll do good in everything you do.

Good luck always,
 Love,
 Hillary
 Lord

Good luck
 w/ Jason!!

The 1,200 copies of the Stampede with 240 pages each sold were printed by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas. The paper stock is 80 pound enamel. The representative was Mark David. The cover is durolith material. The design is computer generated by Genigraphics. Headlines are 36 points and subheads are 24 points. Body copy is 10 point Optima and captions are 8 point, and other various type faces are used throughout the book. Senior portraits were made by American Heritage. Underclassmen were made by Key Photography and various others by Rutledge Photo and Carew Photography.

Cheryl,
I really have enjoyed watching you and your hair
in photography,
Have a good year
